

INDRAVELLI IN BAD CONDITION

TASK OF FLOATING PROVING DIFFICULT

Salvor Is Alongside Expediting Work --Account of Accident Which Befell Steamer.

The latest reports from the big steamship Indravelli which ran full speed on the rocks at Kellett's Bluff, Henry Island, yesterday morning, are to the effect that the vessel is very seriously damaged, nearly forty feet of her hull resting on a ledge of rock at low water and her forward hold having fourteen feet of water in it. These particulars were brought to the city by the steamship Bernuda this morning and the news shatters the hopes which were entertained of the Indravelli being towed off the rocks and brought to Esquimaux to-day. Divers report that there is a large hole in the hull below the water-line while the stem is buckled and torn for several yards. It was thought last night, before the divers had completed their work, that the steamship might be floated at high tide this morning, but it appears probable at the present time that a coffer-dam will have to be built up inside the bows and a false bottom placed in the forward hold before the Indravelli can be floated off. The steamship is not in any immediate danger but it is feared that she may swing broadside on to the rocks should a heavy wind spring up. Although the tide at the point where the steamship is lying is very strong, it is believed that the rocks will hold her from swinging.

There is no anchorage where the Indravelli is hung up and the steep rocks of the bluff do not offer any hold for a cable to steady her. Every effort is being made by the B. C. Salvage Company's crew on the Salvor to get the steamship in position to float her, but there is a slight possibility that should a heavy wind come up the salvage work will be rendered most difficult if not almost impossible. The only explanation of Capt. Cullington's action in proceeding up to Henry Island on his way to Vancouver without calling at quarantine is that he was ignorant of the existence of William Head station. His explanation in regard to the pilot is that he whistled off this port for four hours on Monday night and, finding no boat put off to him, tried to make the Terminal City on the strength of his charts.

The Indravelli passed Tatooch at 5 o'clock on Monday evening, and, according to statements made by her officers, lay off Victoria for four hours during the night in the hope of picking up a pilot. Capt. Cullington was evidently ignorant of the pilotage and quarantine arrangements in effect on this coast, and finding that no pilot boat came out in answer to his whistles he proceeded toward Vancouver. Before midnight a fog came up, and the Indravelli was navigated with caution through the fairway until the vicinity of Open Bay was reached. Here there is deep water right up to the precipitous cliffs of Henry Island, at the extremity of which Kellett's bluff runs out directly into the channel. Opposite the bluff, in Canadian territory, there is a beacon on the Kelp reefs, and keeping well away from this Capt. Cullington found that the echoes from his horn showed land almost completely around him. At 2 a.m. he turned the Indravelli and steamed a short distance back on his course, but shortly after 5 o'clock again headed for the channel off Kellett's bluff.

Running at full speed the big steamship crashed on the sheer cliff, into a short indentation, or cleft, in the rocks. Her stem buckled in for several feet, and a short ledge of rock ate through the plates just far enough to hold her head on. The place where she struck was only about 100 feet from the spot where H. M. S. Amphion hit the rock several years ago, and about 20 feet from the channel. The accident happened so suddenly that nothing could be done to avert it. Steaming at about 10 knots in deep water the Indravelli seemed to be well in the fairway when suddenly she rose on deck saw the huge cliff looming but a few feet ahead of them through the haze. Before a command could be given or a bell rung down in the engine room the bows of the steamship had crashed with terrific force into the jagged rock. Two life-boats were swung out, and every precaution taken to provide a means of escape should the Indravelli slip from the ledge that held her. When the fog cleared up and it was possible to discover the exact location of the steamship, soundings were made. Just off the cliff to which the Indravelli hung there were twenty fathoms of water and thirty-five fathoms of line failed to reach bottom at her stern.

Fearing that his vessel might slip from the rock as the tide rose and go down by the head, Capt. Cullington kept the engines slow ahead. At half-past nine a United States revenue cutter came over to the steamship from Roche Harbor, to which place news of the Indravelli's predicament had been taken by Indians. Upon learning the nature of the steamship's injuries the cutter went back to the harbor and a telephone message was sent to Victoria asking that the Salvor, of the B. C. Salvage Company's fleet of steamers, be sent to the Indravelli's assistance.

As soon as the message was received in the city a party, consisting of Pilot Gossie, La Camrua, W. Allen, of the

R. P. Rithet & Co., agents for the steamship, a Times reporter and Mr. Foster, owner of the fast sea-going launch Maid of the Mist, set off in the latter craft to locate the distressed steamship. After passing Discovery Island the Indravelli was observed lying head-on to Kellett's bluff, and the Maid of the Mist was along side. It was at once apparent that the Indravelli was badly damaged below the water-line, as her pumps were kept going to clear as much water from her fore-hold as possible. The officers of the steamship reported ten feet of water in No. 1 hold.

The Salvor, Capt. Harris, came alongside the Indravelli shortly after 5 o'clock, closely followed by the tug Pioneer and the steamship Trader. Owing to the peculiarly dangerous position of the Indravelli some difficulty was met with in bringing the Salvor alongside, but she was finally made fast, and Capt. J. G. Cox, Lloyd's agent, together with W. F. and H. Bullen, went aboard the big freighter and had a short consultation with Capt. Cullington. At 8 o'clock it was decided to commence salvage operations at once, and the rattle of the Salvor's winches told that the three ten-inch Gwynne pumps were being worked to clear the water being placed on board the Indravelli. ## A NEW COMPANY AFTER TIMBER

W. E. SIMPSON HAS MADE INVESTMENTS

Plans Will be Made During Next Few Months--May Build on Vancouver Island.

That British Columbia has become a strong point of attraction to the investing world there are constantly recurring evidences. And this is particularly so with respect to timber. Numerous instances have been noted in recent months of the stir which is going on among moneyed men to secure interests in the timber possessions of the province. In this connection a Times reporter was permitted last evening to become acquainted with W. E. Simpson, who, on behalf of himself and others, organized as the North American Timber Company, and invested many thousands of dollars in the timber lands of the coast. Mr. Simpson has been on the island for several months, giving personal investigation to investments for his company. It is said that he has secured immense holdings, about two-thirds of which are situated on Vancouver Island, and that the initial outlay of the company for standing timber will figure past the hundred thousand mark.

Mr. Simpson says that his plans for the future are not yet fixed. He has been here to look for good timber, and he succeeded in finding it. The ultimate disposition of their investment will be determined by the directors of the company, and will probably not be seriously considered before next spring. The probability was suggested, however, that a large mill plant will be installed on Vancouver Island, and that before the coming summer is past the investment of the company here will have approached three-quarters of a million dollars, or more.

Mr. Simpson is a prominent banker of Iowa Falls, and his associates include some of the strongest financial men of the state, a number of whom are practically associated with the lumbering industry. He left for Iowa last night, and will return to Victoria sometime in December.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.

Rev. Dr. Chapman Leaves Winnipeg for Holyoke to Carry on Campaign.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.--Rev. Dr. Chapman and his party, numbering twenty persons in all, left Winnipeg last night on a special car of the Soo line. A few members of the party will visit Winoona Lake en route to Holyoke, where the series of revival meetings will be held.

PRICE WAS $14,000,000.

Amount Paid by Grand Trunk for Canada Atlantic Railway.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.--J. R. Booth gave evidence in yesterday's High Court in regard to the claim against him for $2,500,000 by Henry S. Sprague, of New York. The matter is the sale of the Canada Atlantic railway to the Grand Trunk railway was fully explained, and the court reserved its decision at the close. It came out that the Company paid for the Canada Atlantic railway $14,000,000.

BUSINESS DEPRESSION.

Chicago Industries Deplete Their Forces of Employees.

Chicago, Nov. 12.--There have been large reductions in the working forces in many industries in Chicago during the last few days, owing directly to a scarcity of orders and business depression. Several hundred men were laid off directly in various wood-working establishments. Several other concerns are running short time in an effort to maintain their forces.

SYNOD OF MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.--Rev. Mr. Humbell, of Morden, was last night elected moderator of the Synod of Manitoba.

JEWEL MYSTERY GROWS DEEPER

HAVE DUBLIN CASTLE GEMS BEEN RESTORED?

Indications Are That Someone in High Place Was Responsible for Disappearance

London, Nov. 12.--A dispatch from Dublin last night says: "A rumor is in circulation here of a very sensational character concerning the disappearance of the Dublin Castle jewels. It is said they have been restored and are at present in safe keeping at the Birmingham tower, where they reposed before they were taken away."

"The developments in connection with the jewels, one of which was the insignia of the order of St. Patrick, were even more mysterious than their disappearance on July 6th, when an official found them to be missing from the safe. Scotland Yard and the Irish detectives worked unremittingly on the mystery until an order was received from a mysterious source which caused a cessation of all efforts to find the jewels. Accordingly notices sent to pawnbrokers were recalled."

"At the time the insignia disappeared arrangements were being made for the installation of Lord Castletown as a Knight of St. Patrick. The installation has not yet taken place."

ALIENATED WIFE'S AFFECTION.

Wealthy Married Farmer is Sued for $20,000.

Brampton, Ont., Nov. 12.--The case of Henry vs. Mothersill, is being tried here at the fall assizes. Henry is suing Mothersill, who is a wealthy farmer, for $20,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affection. Mothersill is about fifty years of age and married and has a family. Among the family are two daughters who are the principal witnesses. Henry yesterday was examined for four hours. His two daughters corroborated the father's evidence. Mothersill denied the charges. The evidence was all in at 10 o'clock last evening.

INSPECTING B. C. RIFLE CLUBS.

Captain Ellison Predicts Fernie Will Be Most Important Town of Interior.

(Special to the Times).

Golden, Nov. 12.--Captain Ellison, aide-de-camp to Col. Holmes, reached here yesterday. He has inspected the militia corps and rifle clubs of the Okanagan and Boundary. Everywhere he found the members enthusiastically looking forward to next season's shooting.

The captain says that prosperity prevails in all the districts. Fernie, he states, is making pronounced strides, and he predicts it will become the most important town of the interior. He thinks that the K. C. R. will develop the southern mining section of the Columbia valley and the mountain region from Golden to Revelstoke.

DEAD IN CALGARY HOTEL.

Calgary, Alb., Nov. 12.--The dead body of a man, Martin, was found lying in the lavatory of a Calgary hotel. The man was a stone-mason, and quite young.

DEMAND FOR COAL IN CAPE BRETON

Order Placed in Philadelphia for 26,000 Tons--Demand Greater Than Supply.

Halifax, Nov. 12.--An idea of the acuteness of the coal situation in Cape Breton with its great collieries may be gathered from the arrival at North Sydney yesterday of the steamer King Haakon from Philadelphia with a cargo of three thousand tons for the Dominion Steel Company. This is a portion of an order for 26,000 tons, the steel company negotiated for from Philadelphia.

GIGANTIC LOTTERY UNVEILED.

Promoters of United States Concern Reputed to Have Made Millions.

Chicago, Nov. 12.--A morning paper to-day says: "The biggest lottery in operation in the United States which has been running for more than twenty years, with headquarters in Chicago, is claimed to have been exposed last night by arrests in this and other cities."

The United States secret service men assert that the promoters of the system have made millions of dollars and there are big men behind it who will be reached.

BURGLARS CHOOSE THE BEST.

Enter Saskatoon Furniture Store and Decamp With $500 Worth.

Saskatoon, Nov. 12.--Some time on Tuesday morning burglars paid a visit to the gent's furnishing store of H. S. Parker, on First avenue, and made a haul of the best stock of the store. The clothing taken totals $500. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the deed. The police were notified and the matter is in the hands of Sergeant Laggan.

ATTENDED M'KINLEY.

Surgeon to Assassinated President on His Way to British Columbia.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.--Dr. Charles McBurney, the famous New York surgeon, who was the consulting surgeon to President McKinley after he was shot by the assassin, is in the city. He is on the way to the Farther West, and will spend several weeks hunting and fishing in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. He leaves for the West this evening.

CAR SHORTAGE IN SASKATCHEWAN

C. P. R. Acknowledges Difficulties and Will Take Measures for Immediate Relief.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.--As a result of a conference held yesterday between Second Vice-President Wm. Whyte, of the C. P. R., Hon. W. R. Motherwell, of Regina, and R. C. Sanderson, secretary of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, steps will be taken to immediately relieve the car shortage which is fairly prevalent throughout Saskatchewan.

Seventeen engines are being immediately removed from double tracking work on the line between Winnipeg and Fort William and more will be taken off from other lines to meet the requirements, even at the expense of the company's work.

CHILD VICTIM OF FIENDISH OUTRAGE

Little Girl Discovered Cut to Pieces in North Vancouver--Search for Assailant.

Vancouver, Nov. 12.--Clementine Nahu, the seven-year-old daughter of Capt. Nahu, was murdered at North Vancouver on Saturday. The crime was one of the most horrible that ever occurred in British Columbia. The little girl had been ill-treated by a fiend whose actions are too fearful to describe.

The body of the child was found amongst the bushes in Lonsdale Garden this afternoon. She had been killed by cuts with two razors which lay on the ground alongside her remains. Her body was cut to pieces. A bottle of gin was picked up nearby.

The child lived with her parents at Moodyville, and on Saturday she was sent to North Vancouver with orders on some stores. The orders were not filled, and the child was at once searched for. The provincial police and the whole town was searched all Saturday, Sunday, Monday and to-day. The police have gone to North Vancouver from this city, but so far no arrests have been made.

A STRADIVARIUS.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 12.--The police are holding what is believed to be a genuine Stradivarius violin. It is inscribed "Antonius Stradivarius, Faciebat Anno 1238."

One negro caused the arrest of another on a charge of stealing the instrument. The complainant, who says he "thought it a common fiddle," claims he got it from a junk dealer, giving a mandolin in exchange. Both negroes are also held pending an investigation.

A QUEEN'S DAUGHTER.

Rome, Nov. 12.--Queen Helena, this morning gave birth to a daughter. Both are doing well.

Queen Helena is the wife of Victor Emmanuel, the ruling sovereign in Italy.

BRANDON DEBENTURES.

DIED IN VANCOUVER.

(Special to the Times).

Vancouver, Nov. 12.--Mrs. Fred Cape, widow of a former Mayor of Vancouver, died this morning.

DIFFICULTIES HAVE DISAPPEARED

GRAIN CROP WILL BE MOVED QUICKLY

Dominion Government, Banks and Railways Co-operate to Al- leviate Situation.

(Special to the Times).

Ottawa, Nov. 12.--The government will not only co-operate with all the banks interested in moving the grain crop in the West, but the railways have also agreed to do everything possible to have the crop moved quickly, especially the three lower grades that are liable to be destroyed if not marketed at once.

The fact that the government is behind the banks will almost be sufficient, but if necessary some of the gold reserve might be used for this purpose.

The minister of marine to-day telegraphed Washington to have the United States Lighthouse keepers and the grain routes on the lakes left as late as possible this fall, and Canada will defray the extra cost for the services of the men. The government and all the railways are moving hand and hand in this matter and all difficulties in moving the grain crop have disappeared.

AUTOPSY REVEALS POISON.

Nathan Westheimer, Who Died Suddenly in New York, May Be Victim of Crime.

New York, Nov. 12.--Coroner Hard-burger is investigating the death of Nathan Westheimer, of the Heiringer Fire Works Company, who died suddenly at his home yesterday. Mr. Westheimer did not arise when he was called yesterday morning and several hours later when his wife went to his room she found him dead. It was at first believed that death was caused by apoplexy, but an autopsy developed traces of what the coroner believes to have been hydro cyanic acid poisoning.

Mr. Westheimer was interested in mines in Nevada and California and recently returned from a two months' visit in the West.

FACING DEATH.

Russian Emigrants Off Wrecked Steamer Lithuania Reach New York.

New York, Nov. 12.--Seven hundred and twenty-six Russian emigrants, two hundred of them infants in arms, who less than three weeks ago stood for 48 hours face to face with death, arrived here yesterday on the steamer United States from Copenhagen. They were the steerage passengers of the steamer Lithuania, which was wrecked at the entrance of Copenhagen harbor on October 23rd.

They were taken to Copenhagen on tug and arranged for their transportation to the United States were soon made.

STANDARD OF PURITY.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 12.--The National W. C. T. U. yesterday declared for the same standard of purity for both men and women. A resolution asking that football be stopped was voted down. A resolution thanking the government for the efforts to break up the white slave traffic was adopted.

AMBASSADOR TO GERMAN COURT

David Hill, Formerly U. S. Representative at the Hague, Talks of Peace Conference.

New York, Nov. 12.--David B. Hill, who will succeed Charlemagne Tower as ambassador to Germany, arrived here yesterday from the Netherlands.

Of the peace conference, Mr. Hill said: "The importance of the peace conference is not understood at the present time. The body will have a great influence on the future. The peace conference is a new institution and as such it is not understood now as it will be in future years."

Mr. Hill began his public career when he resigned as president of the University of Rochester to become first assistant secretary of state under John Hay, ten years ago. In 1902 he was appointed minister to Switzerland, where he remained two and a half years, when he was transferred to the Hague. He is at present engaged on his "History of European Diplomacy," two volumes of which have appeared. Four volumes of the work are to follow.

BRAIN CONCUSSION.

Regina, Nov. 12.--As a result of a riding accident which occurred on Sunday morning, E. S. Forsay, assistant manager of the Massey-Harris Co., lies critically ill, having sustained severe concussion of the brain.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Livery Barn at Brandon is Totally Gutted--Was Heavily Insured.

Brandon, Man., Nov. 12.--One of the oldest landmarks disappeared last night when McKay's livery barn on Tenth street was totally destroyed by fire. The cause of the fire is at present unknown, but it was first noticed in a bale of straw at the rear of the barn. The barn was owned by Hector McKay, and was heavily insured. Frank Cursas, who rented the structure had at the time about fifty head of horses, several valuable cows, and buggies, in addition to a considerable quantity of harness. The horses were turned loose and driven from the barn. The other contents were also saved by the citizens who all helped. In a loft a large quantity of hay and straw, in addition to 1,500 bushels of oats were destroyed.

KILLED BY THRESHING MACHINE

Lethbridge, Nov. 12.--A sad accident occurred last evening about six miles from this city, when the second youngest child of W. H. Morris, who was riding on a threshing machine separator with his father, fell off. The little fellow was run over by the machine and instantly killed.

THE QUESTION OF FISHERIES

PROVINCIAL CONTROL MIGHT ADD BURDENS

Atlantic Coast Provinces With Ex- perience They Have Had Do Not Desire Change

The attention of a Times reporter was directed by an old longshoreman from the Atlantic coast, to a semi-prominent member of the Attorney-General's office, on the question of fishery rights. In a word it was stated that the provincial government was determined to exert jurisdiction over the fisheries. Provincial rights were to be firmly asserted.

In commenting briefly on this subject the old gentleman suggested firmly the over-ambitious desire of the present government to inaugurate a special protectorate over the rights of the province--a catching phrase in itself--might lead to the hooking up of a load, which the people would wish to have cut from the line. For instance, he pointed out that this question of rights might bring with it a more unpleasant question of obligation and responsibility. The fisheries of British Columbia--other than the catching of salmon--were practically undeveloped, and with their growth there would come considerations, which had much better be left to the federal power. For example, he pointed to the long shore fisheries on the Canadian Atlantic coast, and the vast quantities of fish which had developed for their preservation. One of the destructive elements of the Atlantic industry was the dog-fish and shark, which invaded the coast waters in such numbers that the very existence of the longshoreman was threatened. The question of discovering a means whereby the destruction of the pests might be carried on profitably by the fishermen, had there become one of the serious problems of the day. Establishments had been created by the Dominion government for converting the dog-fish into fertilizers; that is the fishermen within working distance of these establishments had a place where they could find a market for the dog-fish, which swarmed the banks in such abundance that the cod and other commercial fish are driven from the lines. But these ventures, for one reason or another, had not proved commercially successful, and recently a fishery expert in Cape Breton, John P. Joy, had suggested that a reasonable bounty be paid for the snouts of the dog-fish, which sharks, as the only means of furthering their destruction and preserving the longshore industry to the province. This would involve, for a period at least, a heavy expenditure of money, and the local government there had not yet seen, so far as he knew, the desirability of any such aggressive assertion of provincial rights in the matter. They were quite content that the Dominion should be looked to for the necessary financial support. And, said he, may it not be possible that the local government here will find that there is something more than an empty profession of provincial rights in connection with this great industry?

When questioned on the subject this morning, the attorney-general said he did not care, at present, to discuss the relationship of responsibility to the claims which his government was making on behalf of the province. He said, however, that their contention was that the province "owned the fish," both inside and outside the three mile limit; that is, their jurisdiction extends, not only to the rivers and lakes of the province, and to the longshore fisheries thereof, but to the deep sea fisheries as well. The position of the government, as roughly defined by the attorney-general, is that the only federal interest involved in the fisheries is that of "defraying the expenses of maintaining them." The gentleman who drew the reporter's attention to the subject remarked that this, after all, was "a very important interest indeed." The position taken by the government is based, the attorney-general said, on the terms under which British Columbia entered the union in 1871.

IMMIGRATION WAS DISCUSSED

AN OPEN MEETING HELD IN CITY HALL

Local Council of Women Give Op- portunity to Hear All Sides of Question.

Yesterday afternoon the Women's Council closed their convention by an open meeting, when the subject of immigration was discussed. Several speakers representing different views on the subject were asked to attend. In addition to this the meeting was thrown open to all to take part in the proceedings and express their views. The meeting proved a very interesting one. Mrs. R. S. Day presided.

The discussion was opened by Mrs. Fitzgibbon, who told of her experience in London, which qualified her to understand the question of emigration and immigration from an Imperial standpoint.

She pointed out that emigrants from England before reaching British Columbia had to spend a considerable sum of money in transportation. There was also the opportunity of finding a place elsewhere in Canada, which made the question a very difficult one to solve. In England there was a feeling against emigration also. The younger generation showed a tendency also to avoid domestic service and find work in other directions. Labor at reasonable rates was what was needed for every woman in British Columbia, as she had neared middle life, she was able to obtain assistance in connection with her household duties. All the other colonies were competing for the labor. She thought the Chinese should not be objectionable to this country as domestic help.

A Johnson said the Labor party, which he represented, stood for the laborer getting the full product of his toil. According to that principle none would get their bread without exertion.

The reason why Oriental labor was preferred rather than others, was that the Orientals were cooler and little removed from chattel slaves.

White people had come to British Columbia in the past sixteen years in sufficient numbers to populate the province. They had to leave because they were forced to do so owing to the competition of coolie labor.

On the question of Christianizing the Orientals, Mr. Johnson said that for every Chinese religious institution which had been opened there had been many more times the number of gambling and opium dens opened. If other races were to be brought here to be Christianized they should be brought as the equal of the whiteman, and not as a coolie worker.

Rev. Canon Beaulieu contended that to secure for the industrial class the full product of their labor, as represented by Mr. Johnson, would mean wiping out all other classes. It had been argued that the only labor man was really the bread producer. If the principle was lived up to only the bread producer would be allowed to live.

There were a lot of hard working middle class women in Victoria who did not want other women to do their dirty work. These women should not be deprived of the opportunity of having the privilege of a class to draw this help from. It is true that help can be found from England. It is not from the industrial classes, however, but from the broken-down middle class. The young women who were forced to engage in domestic service were paying the penalty for one of their ancestors having attained to the position of a member of the middle class.

The Chinamen employed were not of the coolie class. They were able to write letters home. His last Chinaman had supported six in China. It might be urged against them that this money went out of the country in answer to the way he would say what was the difference as long as value was given.

Lindley Crease argued that the subject of immigration should be looked at from the standpoint of how it would best serve the country. By far the greatest part of the coast line of the province was shut out from settlement. In this respect owing to the difficulty in reaching scattered points, the province differed from the prairie sections. Population was necessary if property was to follow. Men should be got on the land. Immigrants were not needed so much for the cities as for the land. Some method of pouring in people was needed with assimilation of the newcomers. Labor union had a work to do, but there was a tendency some times on the part of these unions to tyrannize over others. There was truth in the contention that steady labor was needed. No one section should take the position of excluding those coming in. The United States would never have been the nation it was if a great thrush from the British Isles, which would right matters. He hoped to see French-Canadians come in also. These made valuable settlers freed from the trammels under which they formerly lived. He hoped to see the people take up the white man's burden and carrying the light of the white man.

ATTEMPTED TO TAKE HIS LIFE

DAVID BURNETT IN PRECARIOUS CONDITION

Young Rancher Shot Himself at Parson's Bridge To-Day-- Is in Hospital.

David Burnett, of East Sooke, brother of William Burnett, the stage driver, attempted suicide this afternoon at Parson's Bridge by shooting himself with a rifle. He was conveyed in an automobile to the Jubilee hospital, where he lies between life and death.

The attempt of Burnett on his own life was witnessed by at least three persons, one of whom, Miss Luckey, was the object of Burnett's attentions. It is believed that it is the result of her refusal to reciprocate his affections that the act was performed.

The two other witnesses were Messrs. Dan Campbell, of the Colwood hotel, and Sam Heatherly, of Sooke Lake. The two men were driving to town shortly after noon when they saw Burnett with his rifle in hand standing beside the Luckey homestead which adjoins the old and now disused blacksmith shop, near Parson's Bridge. As they came in sight Miss Luckey, a 16 or 17 year old girl, rushed out and shouted to hurry to stop that man from killing himself.

Campbell and Heatherly jumped out of the rig and ran towards the man, who passed up the hillside a short distance and then deliberately placing the barrel of his gun on a rock and pointing the muzzle at his heart struck the trigger with a stick. The bullet entered the body a little to the right of the heart, and it is feared that it has pierced his lungs.

A hurry call to the provincial police brought Superintendent Husey, Sergeant Murray and Dr. J. B. Helmcken quickly to the scene, and the unfortunate man was rushed to the Jubilee hospital, where he is now receiving medical attention.

Burnett is about 24 years of age, and the young girl who was the object of his attentions, stated that he had previously threatened to take his life, but that she had always then been successful in dissuading him from doing so.

At the time of going to press the wounded man was undergoing treatment at the hospital. He is not expected to live, the shot having passed clear through his body in the region of his heart. He was conscious up to the time he reached the hospital.

RAILWAY GAMBLE

New York Financiers Purchase Road For $250,000 and Sell at $1,000,000

New York, Nov. 12.—Several prominent financiers to-day appeared before the grand jury which is probing the Wall and Cortlandt Street Company's deal which although the road existed only on paper is alleged to have netted three quarters of a million of dollars to its promoters.

while the remaining $700,000 or more was divided among William C. Whitney, Thomas F. Ryan, Wm. Leland, Thomas Dolan and A. B. Widner. The men summoned before the grand jury to-day were members of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Securities Company, at the time the Wall and Cortlandt Street railway deal was carried through. They are Paul D. Cravath, H. H. Vreeland, Thos. P. Fowler, George G. Haven, Augustus D. Juillard, Edwin J. Berwin and Mortimer J. Schiff.

CONCENTRATOR FOR CONRAD CITY

MANAGER VANCE HAS ARRIVED IN CITY

Mining Company Will Employ a Large Force of Men Next Year.

Twenty men from the north are registered at the Dominion hotel in this city, chief among them being H. W. Vance, manager of the Conrad mine, near Whitehorse, in the Yukon Territory.

The Conrad mine has closed down temporarily while Mr. Vance secures a concentrator for reducing the ore in order that it may be shipped more easily. This will enable the company to treat a large quantity of ore that at present is not of sufficiently high grade to ship without. The mine has been proved to be very rich and this final move on the part of the company will mean the establishment of a permanent industry in the Canadian Yukon.

Next spring Mr. Vance expects to put on about three hundred men, by which means they will be able to ship something like one hundred tons of concentrate a day. It is taken by water to the Yukon and White Pass Railway and thence to the Tacoma smelter, the only one on the coast that can handle ore containing lead.

"The country up there is all very rich," said Mr. Vance. "Large numbers of prospectors have been in this year and almost all have rich finds. The Whitehorse district of the Canadian Yukon is destined to become one of the richest mining districts in the west."

Communication is the most difficult problem that the people of the Whitehorse district have to deal with. Ores that out on the coast would be worth marvellous sums, cannot as yet be shipped because there is no means of getting them out to a smelter. The country is, however, so rich that something is bound to be done in the near future to open it up. The Whitehorse railway people are beginning, but much more is needed and the richness of the country is quite sufficient to warrant the spending of money for the purpose.

ROOSEVELT DOES NOT APPROVE

He Explains Non Appearance of "In God We Trust" on U. S. Gold Coins.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—In answer to one of the numerous protests which have been received at the White House against the new gold coins which have been coined without the words "In God We Trust," President Roosevelt has written a letter which he to-day made public.

The letter says in part: "When the question of the coinage came up we looked into the law and found there was no warrant therein for putting 'In God We Trust' on the coins. As the custom, although without legal warrant, had grown up, however, I might have felt at liberty to keep the inscription had I approved of its being on the coinage, but as I did not approve of it I did not direct that it should again be put on. Of course the matter of the law is absolutely in the hands of congress, and any direction of congress in the matter will be immediately obeyed."

"At present, as I have said, there is no written law for the inscription. My own feeling in the matter is due to my very firm conviction that to put such a motto on coins or to use it in any kindred manner not only does no good, but does positively harm, is in effect irreverent which comes dangerously close to sacrilege. A beautiful and solemn sentence such as the one in question should be treated and uttered only with that fine reverence which necessarily implies a certain exaltation of spirit. Any use which tends to cheapen it, and above all any use which tends to secure its being treated in a spirit of levity, in from every standpoint profoundly to be regretted."

"It is a motto which is indeed well to have inscribed on our great national monuments, on our temples of justice, on our legislative halls, and in buildings such as those at West Point and Annapolis, in which wherever it will tend to inspire a lofty emotion in those who look thereon. But it seems to me eminently unwise to cheapen such a motto by use on coins just as it would be to cheapen it by use on postage stamps or on advertisements. As regards its use on the coinage we have actual experience by which to guide us. In all my life I have never heard any human being speak reverently of this motto on the coins, or show any signs of its having appealed to any high emotion in him, but I have literally hundreds of times heard it used in language of jesting ridicule, which it is above all things undesirable that this beautiful and exalted phrase should excite."

HELD CONFERENCE WITH CANNERYMEN

Hon. W. J. Bowser Met Representatives of the Fishery Industry To-Day.

There was a conference this morning, which lasted over two hours, and was assisted by the presence of a stenographer, between the provincial government and representatives of the cannery business.

The meeting took place in the office of the attorney-general, who as chief commissioner of fisheries, represented the government in the consultation. One great drawback exists in the preparation of any report of what took place at the conference, namely, the uncompromising refusal of all parties present to say what it was all about. That secret is confined to the stenographer and the stenographer and the stenographer and the stenographer.

That there was a discussion the reporter can vouch for, because the musical cadences of the vocal organs of the assembly were quite audible in the ante-room. And that the talk had to do with matters affecting the salmon fishing industry was admitted by all hands.

Hon. Mr. Bowser, in declining to disclose the nature of the representations made, good humoredly stated that it was merely a meeting of friends of his; and he could not be persuaded to see that the public might be interested in what was going on. And members of the delegation refused information to a man Mr. Bell Irving put it that the canners were there not to tell the government anything, but to find out what the government was going to do. And he added: "We found out very little." Another of the deputations, in reply to reportorial interrogations, stated that if there was to be friction between the two governments anent the fisheries they wished to be counted out of the dispute. They all agreed in saying that they had nothing to say at all.

The representatives of canners present at the conference embraced W. Bell Irving, of the A. B. C. cannery; W. H. Barker, of the B. C. Packers' Association; C. F. Todd, of J. H. Todd & Co.; and B. C. Mess, of Findlay, Durham & Brodie, the two former from Vancouver, the latter from this city.

CRIMINAL'S REFUGE

American Arrested in China For Extradition Breaks Jail and Flees.

Peking, Nov. 12.—Horace G. McKinley, wanted in Oregon in connection with the land fraud trials in that state, who was arrested by the Manchurian authorities at Mukden on October 8th, and incarcerated pending the arrival of an agent from America, escaped from custody yesterday. The Chinese government is making efforts to recapture the prisoner.

The escape of McKinley will probably defeat the first attempt of China's co-operation in the extradition of criminals without a treaty. It was hoped that the attempt would succeed and discourage numerous American criminals and adventurers from taking refuge in China.

PARKS BOARD.

Business Transacted at Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon.

The park board met yesterday afternoon, when the chairman, John Arbuthnot, presided. There were also present, Mayor Morley, Ald. Henderson, J. Nelson and F. B. Pemberton. Ald. Hanna's report of the circumstances under which the moose was recovered from G. A. Cullin was received. He reported that Mr. Cullin had got permission to leave the young moose in the park in care of the keeper. This was the only arrangement. He suggested that Mr. Cullin be allowed $175 for the animal, and be charged $175 for keep.

It was decided by the board to charge $300 for the keep of the animal and only a payment of that sum to let the moose depart.

D. D. England, the boulevard superintendent submitted a report relative to needed work and giving hints as to boulevarding. He recommended that no flowery shrubs be planted on them as dogs destroyed them.

His Worship thought dogs should be prevented from running on the streets. The board, after disposing of some other business, decided to visit work now in progress, to which attention was drawn. They will visit it on Monday morning.

No. 61 Floor Varnish!

No. 61 FLOOR VARNISH is one of the best known of our famous STAR BRAND VARNISHES. It is distinctly and exclusively a floor varnish. It is unequalled for this purpose because it is the product of years of special study and practical experimenting, with the sole end in view of producing a perfect finish for floors.

Master painters who care to maintain their record for good work can always secure superior results by using No. 61 Floor Varnish. It is an excellent investment from the standpoint of business-getting, because the condition of the floor is a popular topic of conversation among housewives, and every unusually good job of varnishing you do is a standing advertisement for you. It pays to use No. 61 Floor Varnish.

Send for our booklet—"Floor Plan"—free, post-paid, to any painter. Tells how to get best results in floor finishing.

Plea For Abatement of Murder Trial on Ground of Previous Exoneration.

Georgetown, Ky., Nov. 12.—When the case of Caleb Powers, charged with the murder of Senator Goebel, was called to-day, many of the important defence witnesses who were absent yesterday, causing a postponement of the trial, were present. Commonwealth Attorney Franklin announced that the prosecution was ready to proceed, whereupon Major W. C. Owens, chief counsel for Powers, said: "Before the defence is ready we desire to offer as a plea in abatement the pardon given the defendant by Governor W. S. Taylor after the commission of the crime."

Upon the request of Commonwealth Attorney Franklin, this document was turned over to the attorney for the prosecution, who retired to examine. This is the same pardon that has been produced at all the former trials, and which has been passed on and held invalid.

WAS SCANDAL NOT ROMANCE

HELEN MALONEY RETURNS TO HER HOME

Mystery of Missing Heiress Is Exploded—Montreal Incident—Tangled Domestic Web.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—"I never married Samuel Clarkson. It is all a lie—a mean, despicable lie. I never went abroad with him. I never eloped with him. There is nothing between us and never was. Now it's all settled. I won't say one word more."

Helen, Maloney-Osborne, hurrying from her father's mansion here to her summer home at Spring Lake, N. J., where the scandal that upheaved society upon her recent disappearance, is to be laid at rest through the sanctification of the Osborne marriage by the church, made this passionate announcement.

While she was making it, Arthur Herbert Osborne, who has been reconciled to the late bewitchment of his wife, was fleeing by another route to the Spring Lake cottage. So was Martin Maloney, her father, along a different track, while Mrs. Maloney, the mother, rushed over still another trail to the summer home in New Jersey.

At midnight Spring Lake held all the persons enmeshed in this most gnarled and tangled domestic web—save only Clarkson, who is said to be careless of either the web or the help he weaves or the unwinding of it, owing to a handsome dot the Standard Oil magnate lavished upon him in payment for his promise to mix up in it no more forever.

The fight of the Maloneys and Mr. Osborne was attempted with the same secrecy that has characterized the whole adventure from the moment the heiress daughter was surreptitiously married to Osborne to the return of her father yesterday from his hunt for her abroad.

Apparently the girl herself had been home several days. She had her mother and Mr. Osborne, who scurried over from New York when he learned that Mr. Maloney had come back to patch things up and stop the gossip that is tipping both New York and Philadelphia society on its very uppermost end.

What was said and done in the secret conference held early yesterday morning is not known definitely, but shortly after noon Brother Andrew P. Maloney dashed up in a cab and joined it and pretty soon afterward William J. Fanning, the Maloney's confidential lawyer from New York, also appeared.

Soon after that one of the Maloneys hurried out and sought City Clerk Goebel, asking for a license so that Mrs. Osborne and Mr. Osborne might be married again by a Catholic priest. The city clerk said that was wholly impossible—one marriage between the two having already occurred. Then the emissary returned to the house and there was more confab.

According to reports that came later from friends of the family it was decided that the marriage might be solemnized by the Catholic Church through the dispensation of an archbishop. That is, in spite of the fact that a Long Island Presbyterian minister performed the previous ceremony, when Miss Maloney eloped with Osborne several months ago.

Archbishop Ryan, head of the Pennsylvania diocese, Archbishop Farley's jurisdiction extends over Spring Lake, N. J. There the Maloneys are most prominent in the affairs of their church. There, in the shadow of their cottage, is the beautiful Catholic chapel, erected by Martin Maloney.

Sentiment, it is said, with perhaps a dash of expediency, might move them to have the marriage sanctified there.

It is the general belief of the Maloney family friends that Osborne has been brought to see the matter in the Maloney light and that he has consented to whatever seems necessary to redeem the case. In consequence, the presumption is they will be forthcoming in the authorization of the church to the wedding that the couple carried out so romantically before Clarkson loomed up. And after that, Lawyer Fanning intimates, the family will make a formal statement, somewhat at variance with any of the contradictory announcements they have already given out.

Miss Maloney, it will be officially said, quit her home and the ties that bound her to Osborne, in a passing vagary of innocent love of adventure, without counting at all the cost of her boyish act. Arriving in Montreal, in Clarkson's company, after an all-day journey, she was surprised to find that he had already procured a marriage license and insisted that a wedding between them take place at once.

Now, alive to the peril in which she stood, the girl declared such a thing impossible and fled back to the States, where she took refuge in a Catholic retreat, only a few miles from her father's home. There, according to the expected statement, she remained in seclusion, not knowing what to do, until her father, returning from Europe, insisted upon her return to his house and the church marriage to blow away the breath of scandal.

Wardrobe Economy

A WELL KNOWN LEADER of the London Smart Set once remarked, "I would rather have one really fashionable coat or costume than ten not quite down to the minute, don't you know." That lady was a genuine economist—she realized that her one garment would be of value to her when the ten were of no value except to the second-hand dealer.

Another society leader remarked, with equal truth, "Good tailoring demands durable materials. A good tailor can build seemingly stylish frocks out of poor materials, but it is like 'putting new wine into old bottles,' the materials will not stand for the style." This lady also had true economy in view.

Still another remarked, "I deal at that store which not only specializes, but has a very large turnover in its specialties." This lady understood the economy of "Small Profits and Quick Returns."

If these ladies lived in Victoria they would deal at Campbell's, because our business has been built up and is maintained in its growth on the only true principles of Wardrobe Economy.

Grave Charges Against Ex-Italian Minister—Implicated in Mafia Crimes.

Rome, Nov. 12.—The trial of Nunzio Nazi, formerly minister of public instruction, on charges of defrauding the state treasury, was continued to-day.

Deputy Cappelletti, who was at one time minister of foreign affairs, and who is now president of the parliamentary committee which is inquiring into the Nazi case, made a deposition before the court which is considered to be disastrous for the defence. Cappelletti declared that at the beginning of the investigation he was convinced of the innocence of Nazi, but that the avalanche of accusations and evidence had obliged him to change his opinion.

Among other things he said that the committee had been informed by a deputy that the ministry under Nazi had become the headquarters of the Camorri and the Mafia. The committee had examined certain forged receipts for subsidies intended for poor school teachers, and had found that many of these were signed with fantastic names, such as "Donkey," "Liar" and "Thief," etc., which showed the impudence as well as the criminality of the forgers.

Several newspapers to-day declared that Nazi had in reserve some sensational revelations which he will make at the last moment. These consist in alleged proofs that he gave the missing money to the late Premier Zanardelli to assist in the anti-Austrian propaganda in the Italian provinces still subject to Austria.

FACTS ABOUT ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION.

Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King's inquest is bringing some interesting facts to light in regard to the Mongolian descent upon British Columbia. Our readers are aware that the Deputy Commissioner of Labor has been authorized by the Dominion government to get at the facts, if possible, bearing upon this vexatious question, which at the present time is causing a great deal of agitation within the confines of the province. Mr. King is pursuing his quest in Vancouver. The testimony of a prominent, intelligent and well-informed Chinaman, given yesterday, was to the effect that but for the five hundred dollar head tax the flood of immigration from his own country alone would have assumed the proportions of a deluge. Nor are the possibilities outlined by this Oriental gentleman qualified by the extent of the local demand for cheap labor. There is a considerable demand of that character, as may be gathered from the communications which have appeared in the Times as well as the discussions at public gatherings within the last year or so. But the market for labor of such a class is no longer confined to British Columbia. It is a condition obtaining in other sections of the Dominion. If fed and cherished, there is no reason to doubt that this demand would increase and multiply, with the ultimate result that the agitation against Orientals would not be entirely a British Columbia question. The Chinese witness told the Commissioner that a goodly number of his countrymen, all coming into Canada under contract beyond question, and therefore in contravention of the laws of the country, were destined for eastern points. The demand for their services is importunate there also, and is increasing. The head tax as well as the passage money is paid for them. They work out their obligations practically under conditions of slavery. If an industrious, patient Mongolian can achieve his industrial freedom in a land flowing with milk and honey, as Canada is from an Oriental point of view, in three years, he can accumulate a competence in comparatively short time, as time counts in the life of a healthy man, afterwards. Consequently it is not to be wondered at that the head tax is being paid by increasing numbers of Chinese, nor is it a matter for surprise that Japanese colonies have been gathered in the Hawaiian Islands for the express purpose of evading the regulations of the government of Japan and that the armies thus gathered together are being transported to British Columbia. But it is a matter for surprise that in view of the conditions prevailing in this province and in Canada generally, considering the fact that everything possible is being done to check Oriental immigration and to encourage immigration of a desirable class from Europe, the unquestioned demand for labor in certain lines has not been met from sources outside of Asia.

There is one phase of the question of Oriental immigration to which we desire to direct particular attention in the light of what has been laid bare by the investigation of Mr. King. The Asiatic Exclusion League of British Columbia seems to assume with confidence that the question of Oriental immigration would be settled for all time to come by the passage of a measure based upon the principles of the act in force in the colony of Natal. Does it not occur to these gentlemen that as Orientals appear to regard British Columbia as a specially inviting field, that as many of them as are willing to sell their bodies into slavery for three years at least for the privilege of entering this land of promise, that no act which would not also exclude multitudes of people we are striving to bring to Canada and whom we must have if Canada is to flourish, would be effective in barring the Orientals out? The Japanese are held to be the greatest menace at the present time. How long would it take an intelligent, aggressive and ambitious Jap to accumulate a sufficient knowledge of one of the languages of Europe to qualify him for admission to Canada under the provisions of the Natal Act? It is this consideration which convinces us that the most effective remedy for the Japanese incursion is to be found in an understanding between the two governments, and it is to give active effect to an understanding already existing and to put an end to the work of immigration associations operating in Japan and Hawaii that Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux has gone on a diplomatic mission to the Orient.

A HERO'S HEROIC SUGGESTION.

Talk about mollicoddies on the playground of the country and in the household thereof also. A man of distinguished ancestry, if not a man of note on his own account, General Grant II., of the United States army, comes forward and publicly charges the world with mollicoddling its criminals. He says prisons in all parts of the world (we assume Russia and one or two European and Asiatic states might be excepted) are now made so attractive that crime is encouraged. The general would not only put an end immediately to all such results of effeminate sentiment, he would go a good deal farther in the direction of masculine, masterful treatment. He says emphatically that all incorrigible criminals, and in that class he would include all who have committed a second offence against the laws of the land, "should be so disposed of that they would be prevented from having any descendants." The general is evidently a chip of the hardened old block which declared dogmatically that a certain campaign should be conducted along certain lines even if it did take a certain length of time and have certain effects upon the country. But the son of General Grant is also a Christian gentleman, although, like his historically distinguished ancestor, the quality of mercy in his cosmos is not strained. He concedes that it would not be a Christian-like act to kill all incorrigible criminals, although in strict justice they ought to be executed for their crimes and for the protection of society. In treating their disease he would merely subject them to some such course as that adopted by the United States army in stamping out smallpox and fever. The end the general has in view is the cultivation of ideal citizenship, something he says which can never be attained while people of natural criminal tendencies are permitted to mingle their contaminated blood with that of persons of ideal tendencies. So he would exterminate them root and branch in the manner recommended. There seems to be a contradiction between this emphatic dogmatism and what the general has to say later on: "There are a few ideal citizens, but they are generally men like college professors and clergymen who live secluded lives. Men in general may believe in ideal citizenship. They may practice it generally, but the reason that many of them do not go wrong is because they do not have the opportunity. There have been many accusations lately, in our public life, but the men who have called them forth have usually done only what many of us would have done, had we the opportunity. So, instead of talking of ideal citizenship, we had better form such a plan of practical citizenship as will prevent the average smart man from getting the better of the others."

According to this theory, the cure proposed by General Grant would be very wide-embracing indeed—it is true that the tendency to do the wrong thing is limited by individual opportunity. We fear the general, again like his father, is scarcely logical in his reasoning.

Some of the northern ports of Great Britain were at one time the centres of a thriving whaling industry. For years the people of the eastern United States and Newfoundland participated in the remunerative business. Later San Francisco joined in the pursuit of the great mammals. Within the past couple of years we may say, we believe without possibility of contradiction, that the centre of the industry has been transferred to Vancouver Island. Therefore we are not surprised to hear a feeble wall from a British newspaper about the decadence of the whaling business in that country. The following is copied from the London Tribune: By the loss of the celebrated whaling ship the Windward, reported yesterday from Canada, we are reminded of the precarious condition of what was once a flourishing British industry. From the middle of the eighteenth century down to 1823, when the bounty to whalers was withdrawn, it was carried on with considerable success from many of our north-eastern ports. Whisky, for example, used to have its whaling fleet. To-day Dundee is the chief centre of what remains of the industry, and for two years in succession its fleet has had a blank season in the Davis Strait, once a good whaling ground. Presumably the whales have retreated still further north into the more remote portions of the Arctic. Whalers have always shown great daring and enterprise in following their prey; indeed, geography owes much to their voyages both in the North and the South Polar regions. But the whalers, for their part, have learned caution, and are now much harder to catch.

The harvest of the Northwest has been sufficiently bountiful to tax the capacity of the transportation companies if it has not quite come up to the maximum of previous years. The C. P. R. has confessed to a shortage of cars. Speculators are charged with a desire to profit by conditions which are inimical to the interests of the farmers. The result is that the government has undertaken to see if it cannot be of some assistance in removing the embargo, thus permitting producers to realize on their productions. There is little doubt that with the co-operation of the banks a condition which is threatening more or less embarrassment, and therefore is a menace to the prosperity of the country, may be overcome. British Columbia is vitally interested in the progress of the Northwest and our business concerns will welcome any announcement favorable to the cause of the settlers.

There is little probability of Hon. A. B. Aylesworth being compelled by an infirmity in his hearing to retire from the Dominion government. But if the Minister of Justice does retire and Mr. T. C. Robbette can be persuaded to assume his portfolio, one of the most brilliant of the younger members of the Bar of Ontario will join the government.

The base of the park moose may be considered as settled by the decision of the commissioners, we suppose. The young people of Victoria will be pleased to hear that their somewhat ungainly friend is in no immediate danger of either repatriation or expatriation. His generous appetite is a guarantee of his presence for a good many years to come, we trust.

We have not any reliable statistics at hand to justify our assumption, but we believe November is generally accepted in Victoria as the month of greatest precipitation. November of this year is evidently going to prove an exception to the rule, unless Jupiter Pluvius opens his windows and keeps them open continuously for a couple of weeks.

The eastern provinces of Canada are all well satisfied to let the Dominion government administer the fisheries. But then none of the governments in the east is dominated by a Mr. Bowser.

What Other People Think

VICTORIA, THE SLOTHFUL—A POINT OF VIEW—A SUGGESTION.

To the Editor:—The antithesis, "Victoria, the Beautiful," is, without a doubt, equally true; but in that is our danger: we are much too inclined to accept our gifts without an effort to utilize all that should be made of them. In our good fortune we are contented, with the content that in an individual would be deemed satisfactory. It is in the hands of Victorians to make the change, but this will need energy, method, continuity, and last and first—the man. Nature has been generous to this favored spot. Victoria is beautiful. But still we have little reason for pride in advantages entirely due to nature, and utilized so poorly by ourselves.

Victoria should be a garden city. We have no water. The streets should be clean; they are not. Nothing is done—no action taken—until our councillors are forced by public opinion to cautiously advance a hortatory suggestion. The consideration of questions that, in some future day, may lead to the obviously necessary action.

The natural advantages—the unique advantages—in climate, scenery, vast islands, fisheries and so on; and the riches in mining and timber enjoyed by Vancouver Island and Victoria, beyond any other part of North America, are not utilized as they should be. Strangers are permitted to only casually learn of them; while visitors to the city are immediately faced with the amazing lack of—not enterprise, but duty—displayed in the wretched state of the streets, water power, and the old cemetery.

It seems a pity to allow feeble incompetence to waste nature as is done in Victoria. No one can imagine in any other city in the country such antiquated, drifting, methodless conditions as are here permitted. It may be due, among other causes, to the fact that the city is not without some pride, the slow pace of their city. They seem to think it an admirable English trait, rather than one peculiarly Victorian. It is an admission that is usually made abroad, and lesser people wonder. Here it would be palpably absurd.

consciously, efficiently and thoroughly? Many questions doubtless often arise that are not altogether without the province of any one of them; and the decision, whether or not, or as the case may be, may change in the least, with the least capable—the least energetic—official of any of these bodies.

Does it not seem a reasonable and sound business proposition to centralize all such matters in the hands of a really live, energetic, capable and well paid man (secretary), directed by a committee of experts formed of, say, three or four chosen in the same way? By this means, in the least energetic—official of any of these bodies. The recent material progress of Victoria, it should not be forgotten, is due in part only to her merits; the other—the greater cause—is owing entirely to the remarkable expansion and prosperity of the country east of the mountains. Instead of forcing the pace in the progress of cities—we have merely felt the fringe of that success that others have intelligently worked for and made, and which we could not escape. Yet we have all the advantages that they have, many that they have not, but we lack the men. The latter is aimed at no particular individual, or body of men, but is just a plea made in an endeavor to awaken the present, or future, commercial leaders of this city from the exasperating, ruinous and wasteful somnolence of the past, to a same realization of the possibilities, as a manufacturing and commercial centre, of Victoria the bountiful.

AN ALTRUISTIC VIEW.

To the Editor:—It is easy to reply to your correspondent, A. R. Sherk, on the Asiatic question. The greatest curse to any person is a selfish feeling, which no just and well behaved person would want. I would request Mr. Sherk to inform your readers if he poses as a Christian—namely, of what caste he professes to follow. As this country is a Christian community I will ask your readers if they would adopt the thought of justice for all, that man is man, no matter from what land he may be from. Does not Scripture teach us that we should love our neighbors as ourselves? Do we not have missionaries sent to the Asiatics to make them or attempt to convert them from the belief of one God to another? If he is such a horrid creature, why waste money and time, and very often life, to convert them to our belief?

Is Mr. Sherk aware that if he could trace his own kinsmen back far enough he would find that we are all descendants of the Asiatic? Evidently your previous correspondent shows very much sentiment. It goes a very long way till it touches one's pocket. Be sanitary conditions. As I have travelled about 40,000 miles annually for the last sixteen years and have taken in the scenes of both sides, I must confess that I have seen more horrid sights among my own color (white) than among any other creed or color, and we whites should be the first to cease this agitation against our colored friends or neighbors. If we expect equality of ourselves you should act likewise against the Asiatic. Look how he treats us in his domain. Then we should only return the hearty and just feeling to him. You would not expect one of your men and another for the other. If we should have a distinction, would you call that freedom, or tyranny, and tyranny only? And why do you call him a Hindu? Is he not a British subject as ourselves?

The trouble is with many in this vicinity that they are incapable of keeping pace with their neighbors, who are not. Some of you fear competition is not a fit person among any civilized community. E. KIM.

Victoria, Nov. 12th, 1907.

FORTUNE FOR NEWSBOY.

A seventy-year-old "newsboy," of Keady, Co. Armagh, has just come into a fortune of $75,000. This stroke of luck has fallen to the lot of Matthew Mills, who has received information that the tragic death by fire of a brother and sister in Melbourne has made him heir to this large sum. For nearly twenty years Mills, who is a frail but cheery old fellow, has earned his livelihood by selling papers, and he is quite an entertaining character. Interviewed regarding his windfall, he said ruefully that he supposed he must go now and prove his identity, and get the legacy, but declared he should come back to his paper selling. He could not think of dropping his avocation, no matter what fortune he got.

Salvor's divers donned their suits at 9 o'clock and went down with electric lights to ascertain, as far as possible, what actual damage the steamship had sustained.

The Trader and the Pioneer stood by for some time until their masters realized that they would not be called upon for assistance. The Princess Victoria, passing the bluff on her way to Victoria from Vancouver about half-past five, slowed her engines and Capt. Griffin enquired of the Maid of the Mist whether he could render any service, or whether there was any important message for Victoria. For the few moments that the Victoria was close to the damaged Indravelli with the Salvor and the other two steamers standing by the port the rails were lined with passengers taking in the curious sight.

Among those who went out on the Salvor were Messrs. Bullen, Capt. Cox and Alex. McDermid, the latter returning to Victoria with Mr. Allen and the Maid of the Mist party.

Capt. Cullington has been three years a master of steamships, and was making his first voyage to these waters. He is accompanied by his wife and child, who have been with him since the Indravelli left Swansea, seven months ago.

The Indravelli, which is owned by R. B. Royden & Co., of Liverpool, England, left Swansea on April 27th for New York, and had a very stormy trip across the Atlantic, reaching the eastern port on the 16th of May, after a passage of 19 days. From New York the steamship crossed to Gibraltar, thence proceeding to Port Said, Suez, Aden, Singapore, Hongkong, Shanghai, Dally and Chemulpo. From Chemulpo the Indravelli went to Nagasaki, and then to Moll, where she loaded two thousand tons of coal and left for Victoria, riding light, to take up the New Zealand service for R. A. Alley & Co., which firm has chartered her.

Moll was left on October 22nd, and when almost at the meridian the Indravelli met with the typhoon reported by

NO MORE FOG.

"Air Cannons" to Clear the Atmosphere—Weather to Order.

Will M. Demetrio Maggiora's air cannon succeed in permanently ridding London of fog? M. Maggiora proposes to place "projectors," or cannon, each 60 feet long, at various points six miles from the Houses of Parliament, and then, by shooting at an angle over the metropolis, create an atmospheric movement which will lift the densest fog in twenty minutes.

"The plans are all ready, and I am simply waiting for the decision of the public control committee of the London county council to determine whether or not, and when I shall give the first test," said M. Maggiora. "I am confident of success in London."

"How does the scheme work?" My projectors, acting like cannon, have a chamber at the base, in which a gas explosion is caused. This creates a vibration, or concussion, in the air effective for a distance of six miles. Now the cannon ranged at an upward angle toward a given point—say, over the Houses of Parliament—would create a lifting of the lower strata of atmosphere. Fog exists simply from lack of air movement. Consequently when the air currents start the fog will rise to an altitude where the wind will carry it away. This is not theory, but fact, often demonstrated at Milan.

"Under the pressure of the explosion the volume of air issuing from the 'cannon' attains a rotary movement with a speed of over 150 yards a second, and is capable of attaining a height of 4,000 yards, while the concussion reaches six miles.

"From eight to ten projectors ought to be used as a permanent anti-fog apparatus for London, but at first I shall use only one. With this I shall be able sufficiently to demonstrate the feasibility of the scheme. Twenty explosions, costing 7d. each, will dissipate any fog in 20 minutes.

"Clouds also may be scattered. This, however, requires constant explosions. At Milan we were able to keep blue sky over the city six hours while clouds floated all around. Suppose some great outdoor event were to be celebrated in London, involving great expense, and the comfort of thousands of spectators, it would certainly be an advantage if rain could be artificially kept off."

DESOLATION LAND.

France is on the point of launching another voyage of exploration. The expedition is under the command of Capt. de Baly, of the French navy, one of the comrades of Charcot, whose name the ship bears, and its destination is Kerguelen Land, the region which Cook termed Desolation Land. Thence the commander declares to be full of coal and other minerals, while the land is so adapted for cattle that a dozen rabbits imported a few years ago are now as horrible a pest as in Australia.

MASQUERADE BALL

Sons and Daughters of St. George Provided Splendid Entertainment.

Last evening at the A. O. U. W. hall, Yates street, the Sons and Daughters of St. George were en fete. The ballroom was decorated for the occasion with banners of many colors, vying with the costumes of the dancers for gaiety of coloring and beauty of design. The costumes were imitative of all countries and grades of society. There was a large number present, which taxed to its utmost the commodious hall.

Those in costume only were allowed on the floor up to midnight, but after that all joined in the merriment of the dance and kept it up until an early hour. The music was provided by Thain's orchestra, the committee in charge being: Messdames Greenhalgh, Penketh, Levy, Rivers, Rowbottom and Savony, and Messrs. Penketh, Barnett, Rudd, Levy, Rivers, Jones, Greenhalgh and Hepworth.

The judges were Miss Mary Hutchinson, Mrs. Simpson, T. Gold and F. J. Coche. The prizes were awarded as follows:

Best dressed lady, for China tea set, Mrs. D. T. Barnard, rose and white satin.

Best dressed gentleman, for case of pipes, Chas. Stokes, French courtier.

THE GIFT CLOCK

As years roll by no other gift will bring as many pleasant memories of the giver as a GRAND FATHER'S CLOCK.

An illustration would give but a slight idea of the beauty of this stately hall clock.

The case is made of highly polished Solid Mahogany, stands eight feet in height, and is 28 inches wide.

It is beautifully adorned by hand carving and has quaint latticed wood sides.

The clock has a very fine grade movement, striking the hours and half hours on a rich toned tubular gong.

The dial is of hand pierced brass and has the moon dial.

The Price is $250

KAGA MARU ARRIVES.

The Steamer Reached Port After An Uneventful Trip.

Bringing a very large and valuable cargo and a full complement of passengers, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, liner Kaga Maru, Capt. Laprak, reached port this afternoon from Yokohama, after a smart trip.

At the outer wharf 123 Japanese, 12 Russians and 18 Chinese were landed and nine saloon passengers among them being Mr. and Mrs. Luther G. Angler. Mr. Angler is the proprietor of the London and China Express, and is taking his annual tour around the world, being now on his way home to England.

The Kaga Maru's cargo included 500 bales of raw silk, 10,000 rolls of matting, and 4,000 packages of tea in addition to several large consignments of general merchandise. For Victoria the steamship had 1,500 tons of freight which is being landed. She will sail for Seattle to-morrow.

The Kaga reported an uneventful trip. Two days of the passage were marked by heavy gales, but the steamship did not meet with the typhoon reported by the Keemun, Empress of India and Indravelli.

The passengers landed here were: First cabin, Mr. and Mrs. James Mayes, S. Akiyama, M. J. Meda, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Angler. Second class, Mrs. L. Get, Miss Yak Hing, Miss Chow Oye, Miss Min Kwong, Miss Lee Sow, Pak Sing.

DEATH OF EARLY RESIDENT.

Mrs. Murray Passed Away This Morning at the Home of Her Daughter.

The death occurred this morning at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. W. Hurst, of 28 Second street, of Margaret Murray, relict of the late John Murray, at the age of 83 years. The late Mrs. Murray was a native of Pennsylvania, U. S. A., and came to this city 33 years ago. She has resided here ever since. There remain to mourn her loss one son, Edward Murray, and a daughter, Mrs. Wm. Hurst. A brother, Michael O'Rourke, also resides in Victoria.

The funeral has been arranged to take place from the residence as above on Friday morning at 8.45, and 9 o'clock at the Roman Catholic cathedral.

JUVENILE COURT IN THIS CITY

OFFICIALS STATE
IT ALREADY EXISTS

The Chief of Police Explains How Youthful Offenders Are Treated in Victoria

Victoria has a juvenile court in every sense of the word. That is the opinion of all in this city who have anything to do with the youthful criminals who are caught breaking the law in this city.

At the meeting of the Women's Council on Monday the following resolution was introduced by Mrs. Jenkins, and unanimously passed:

"Whereas it is not only the right but the duty of the state to legislate for the best interests of its children, and as the present method of trial of juvenile offenders is subversive of their best interests, destroying rather than building character: And whereas the welfare of the country depends upon the character of its citizens.

"Be it resolved, that this Local Council of Women approach the legislature at its next session, praying for the enactment of a law for the establishment of a juvenile court, or courts where juvenile delinquents may be tried without the publicity and stigma at present attached to such proceedings.

A Times reporter interviewed the chief of police and other officials and inspected the police station with the result that he is convinced that in every sense of the word Victoria has a juvenile offenders court. In order, however, that the public may be fully satisfied of the fact the following explanation of the chief of police is appended:

"Whenever possible juvenile offenders are not arrested in the ordinary way but are summoned to appear at a given hour, at which time the public, including newspaper reporters, are excluded from the room. The parents of the children are always requested to be present, or if they have no parents, then their guardian or person with whom they live. The greatest privacy is maintained as to who the offenders are in order that the thoughtless act of a child may not stigmatize them in after life.

"For a first offence, if it is a venial one, the boy, for it is usually a boy, is let out on suspended sentence, his parent or guardian giving bonds for his future good behavior. As it is in nine cases out of ten the parent's neglect that is the cause of the offence this brings home to the parent the necessity for closer supervision of the idle hours of his offspring, and in most cases is effective.

"Should it be necessary to arrest the youthful lawbreaker, he is incarcerated in a separate department of the city lock-up. At the local police station there are two stories, the upstairs designed for the use of female offenders, while the ordinary drunk or other male offender is shut up on the ground floor. The upstairs is divided into two distinct departments so that should there be women in the lock-up at the time a boy is arrested there is still a place for him to be put quite distinct from the common jail downstairs. Even if it should be necessary to keep a boy downstairs he is kept in a separate department and allowed the use of the yard."

From the above it will be seen that in Victoria there is in every sense of the word a juvenile court. The fact that there is not a separate and distinct building for the purpose and a separate and distinct magistrate set to try the cases does not in any way alter the fact. Magistrate Jay, when sitting as a juvenile magistrate, has discretionary powers just as would be the case if he were not also police magistrate.

During the present year there have been 37 juvenile cases come before the court. As there have in some cases been several charges against the same boy or boys, the number of offenders would probably be about thirty or less. Of these twelve were brought up for the youthful escapade of growing the car rails. Only this morning a boy was brought up for shooting a gun within the city limits and allowed out on suspended sentence. This case was probably the result of the resolution of the Women's Council asking that the law in this respect be more strictly enforced.

In all, eleven boys have been sent to the reformatory during the year, three for stealing have been given two years; one out of control of the father, was given three years; six boys guilty of breaking and entering, two years each, and one for the same offence, one year.

The provincial reformatory, which is situated near Vancouver, is really a large industrial school, the boys being treated just as pupils in a boarding school. There are no bars to the windows, nor is there even a high fence surrounding the institution.

SPORTING NEWS

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

MATCH TO-DAY.

On account of the Collegiate Football Club having to go to Vancouver on Saturday they are playing their match with North Ward this afternoon at Beacon Hill.

GAMES THIS WEEK.

The big game between J. B. A. A. and Shearwater will take place Saturday afternoon next at 2.30 at Oak Bay. The Garrison will play Esquimalt at Work Point and the Y. M. C. A. will meet the Fifth Regiment at Beacon Hill. Esquimalt will be expected to change colors as it is their home game.

Egeria is scheduled to play the Garrison to-morrow at Work Point. The ship is expected to arrive to-day, but it is questionable if they will be able to get away to-morrow. If they do not, and if the ship is leaving port again, arrangements may be made for them to get a game on Saturday in place of one of the other teams.

HOCKEY.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR SEASON.

On Saturday, November 30th, the Oak Bay grounds will be in the hands of the Hockey Club. Two matches have been arranged for that date so the football players will have to play elsewhere. Seattle will, on that day, bring over its young team to try conclusions with the local boys and at the same hour the ladies of Victoria will play their first match against the Nanaimo ladies. Both of these will be league games, the schedule for the season having been drawn. The season opens a week previous to the above date when the Garrison, now the British Columbia champions, will visit Vancouver for the opening games.

An official board of referees has been appointed to consist of G. Melhuish, of Vancouver; J. Hart, of Victoria, and Major Williams, of the Barracks. This board will handle all games. The following amendment has been made to rule 22 of the English Hockey Association:

"That a referee shall have power to rule any player off the field for a time not exceeding ten minutes or for the whole time at his discretion."

THE SCHEDULE OF GAMES IS AS FOLLOWS:

Nov. 30—Garrison vs. Vancouver, at Vancouver; referee, J. Hart.
Dec. 7—Seattle vs. Victoria, at Victoria; referee, Maj. Williams.
Dec. 14—Garrison vs. Victoria, at Victoria; referee, G. Melhuish.
Dec. 21—Seattle vs. Vancouver, at Seattle; referee, J. Hart.
Dec. 28—Garrison vs. Seattle, at Garrison; referee, G. Melhuish.
Jan. 4—Victoria vs. Vancouver, at Vancouver; referee, Maj. Williams.
Jan. 18—Seattle vs. Garrison, at Victoria; referee, G. Melhuish.
Jan. 25—Vancouver vs. Victoria, at Victoria; referee, Maj. Williams.
Feb. 1—Victoria vs. Garrison, at Garrison; referee, G. Melhuish.
Feb. 15—Vancouver vs. Garrison, at Garrison; referee, J. Hart.
Feb. 22—Victoria vs. Seattle, at Seattle; referee, Maj. Williams.
Feb. 29—Vancouver vs. Seattle, at Vancouver; referee, J. Hart.

The Garrison-Seattle game of Jan. 18th will be played in Seattle if the Garrison is permitted to leave Canada.

SEATTLE BUYS STICKS.

Seattle is going into the hockey business with a vim. Being unable to purchase a sufficient number of sticks in their own city, they have sent over an order to John Barnsley & Co., of this city, for three dozen sticks of the best possible grade, and Percy Brown will pick them out.

The male members of the Hockey Club will have a full practice at Oak Bay next Saturday at three o'clock alongside the Association football. It will be the first time they have had an opportunity of a full practice.

TWO KENNEL ANNUAL MEETING.

Practically every dog fancier in the city attended the annual meeting of the Victoria Kennel Club last night in Dr. Garceshe's rooms. The meeting was very enthusiastic and arrangements were made not only to hold the annual bench show next April, but also to have a series of parlor shows in the Sir William Wallace hall, Broad street, the first to take place within a few weeks. The finances of the club were found to be in a very satisfactory condition, a considerable balance being on hand with which to commence the season.

The following new members were admitted as members of the club: Messrs. Catterall, S. Goodacre, Malnguy, Walters and Walker.

Dr. Garceshe was again elected to the position of president by acclamation, the other officers being: vice-president, J. W. Creighton; secretary-treasurer, G. H. Dunn; executive committee, Miss Davis, T. P. McConnell, J. W. Creighton, Walter Winsby and Wallis. A bench show committee was also appointed, consisting of the following: Messrs. Hickford, Hanson, Wallis, Catterall and Hodgson, with Frank Turner superintendent of the show. The delegate to the Pacific Advisory Board is to be Miss Davis.

CANADIAN DOGS WIN.

In the Independent Field Trials Club's Derby at Hutsenville, Ill., held last week, Canadian dogs made a clean sweep of the prize money, first being won by Count Cux, owned by W. T. Hunter, Rossland, B. C.; second by Milton's Vic, owned by W. R. Milton, Winnipeg; third, by Manitoba Rap, owned by Thos. Johnson, Winnipeg, and fourth by Happy Day, owned by Joseph Lemmon, Winnipeg.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

EASTERN RESULTS.

Montreal won the championship of the interprovincial Rugby series of Quebec and Ontario by defeating Ottawa by the overwhelming score of 25 points to 0 on Saturday. The final standing of the clubs reads:

	Won	Lost
Montreal	4	1
Hamilton	3	2
Ottawa	1	4
Argonauts	1	4

In the intercollegiate series McGill won from Ottawa College at Montreal by 2 points to 0 and Varsity from Queen's at Toronto by 20 points to 5. The present standing of the colleges reads:

	Won	Lost	Drawn
Ottawa College	3	1	1
Varsity	3	2	0
McGill	2	2	0
Queen's	0	3	1

ATHLETICS.

ANNUAL MARATHON.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium classes have had their annual marathon race on Saturday night. They are now preparing for the Y. M. C. A. annual Marathon race which comes on New Year's Day. The first event was held last year and Frank Baylis won on that occasion but this year there will be a large number of competitors and Baylis will have to make fast time if he expects to win. It is not at all improbable that a cup or prize of some kind will be donated. Last year it was given by R. L. Drury.

INDIAN RECORDS.

Tom Longboat, the Indian runner, so far has maintained the reputation of the aborigines of America for endurance in a long distance run. A great many people, however, are under the impression that the white man cannot stand the strain of a ten to fifty or one hundred miles as can the red man, but this is a mistake, as the racing records testify, both in Canada, Great Britain and the United States. The Indian, with his mechanical trot, as a guide through a pathless forest, is marvellous in his precision and endurance, and can cover mile after mile through thick bush and over rough ground, at a pace which few white men have ever attained, excepting probably, some of the employees of the Hudson's Bay Company. The Indian from early childhood is practiced to keep up the shambling "trot" through the woods, when hunting. They contend that they would soon tire out if they hunted after the manner of the white man.

In his movements the Indian is not nearly so graceful running as his white brother, though he generally covers more ground in his stride, on snowshoes he is seen to better advantage.

One of the best Indian runners, who has a best world's record for a long distance run was L. Bennett, the famous "Deerfoot," who ran away from everyone in Canada and the United States in the early sixties of last century. He was said to be of the Mohawk tribe, possessed a powerful physique, was tall and good-looking, having the aquiline nose of the red man painted in the novels of Fenimore Cooper. He was taken to England in the spring of 1863 and quickly came to the front among the greatest runners of the day. He won many races and was also fast. His two best feats were April 3rd, 1863, at Brompton, England, when he ran against time 11 miles, 970 yards in one hour. This was surpassed in 1897 by E. E. Bacon, professional, at Rochdale, Eng., who ran 11 miles 1,243 yards in the same time.

An amateur, W. G. George, July 28th, 1884, ran 11 miles 323 yards 9 inches in an hour at London, England. "Deerfoot" the same year ran 12 miles in 1 hour, 2 minutes 2 1/2 seconds, and the amateur, S. Thomas, did the same distance in 1 hour, 2 minutes, 43 seconds. The best 25 mile run, G. Mason, 2 hours, 36 minutes, 34 seconds, professional; G. A. Dunn, 2 hours, 35 minutes, 42 seconds, amateur. The best 10 miles, W. Cummings, professional, 51 minutes, 6 3/5 seconds, at Little Bridge, London, 28th September, 1885, and W. G. George, amateur, 51 minutes, 20 seconds. The best 50 miles, George Cartwright, 5 hours, 55 minutes, 4 1/2 seconds, at Royal Aquarium, Westminster, 27th February, 1887, and J. E. A. A. Fifth Regiment, and the Tramway Company. It is not at all unlikely that the North Ward Football Club may enter a team in the intermediate league and the Shamrocks will very likely play both intermediate and junior.

Art in Pianos

Appearance should not be THE essential of a piano. It should be AN essential.
The New Scale Williams are masterpieces of architectural beauty. They are ornaments to every home. They lend an elegance, a refinement, that nothing else can fill. They are made in all woods and colors to harmonize with the drawing-room, parlor, den and hall.

The veneers for the New Scale Williams Pianos are of every fine kind of wood—principally MAHOGANY from Spain, Brazil and the West Indies—WALNUT, from France and the Circassian—QUARTERED OAK AND SATINWOODS from the southlands.

There are four veneers on the case—two inside and two outside. They are cross banded—that is, the grain of each veneer runs in a different direction from the one next to it—thus adding strength.

The case of the

The New Scale Williams Piano

is made of five thicknesses of hardwood. All woods used in the New Scale Williams—in case as well as action—are seasoned for three years after reaching the saw. Then they are perfectly dry—can never swell or shrink—and wear like iron.

Every New Scale Williams receives seven coats of varnish. Each is allowed to sink in the wood and dry, before the next is put on. This gives the brilliant, lasting finish that is so admired. The sympathetic touch—the magnificent tone—the sweetness and volume of the New Scale Williams are fully in keeping with its exquisite appearance.

These features and many others are illustrated and described in our Booklets. May we send the three? FREE, of course. We will tell you about our Easy Payment Plan, too.

NEW QUARTERS OF LIBERAL PARTY

Comfortable Rooms Have Been Fitted up on Government Street for General Convenience

The Liberals of Victoria have just moved into convenient and commodious quarters on Government street, over Hall & Walker's office, with entrance at the Old Post Office building, 1230 Government street.

The rooms are commodious and are fitted up with card tables, writing materials, magazines and papers, where Liberals, either local men or visitors to the city may make their headquarters and meet their friends. For some time the local associations have felt the need of such a place and the premises chosen are not only central, but are in every way suitable to the purpose for which they have been adapted.

With the growth of the city there must necessarily be a large number of strangers who are invited to use the city and they are invited to use the rooms and to meet there the Liberals of the city and thus get in touch with what is doing in local Liberal circles.

Anyone desirous of registering their names as voters will usually find someone in the rooms who can place them on the list. Anyone not registered is advised to see it at once and there is no more convenient place in which to do it than the new Liberal rooms.

It is the intention during the winter to hold a few informal smoking concerts in the rooms. The quarters are available also for all meetings of a party nature.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW.

Preparations for the Event Which Will Open To-morrow in Carnegie Library.

Preparations are being made for a very attractive chrysanthemum show which will take place to-morrow and Friday in the Carnegie library at three o'clock in aid of that very excellent charitable institution, the Protestant Orphanage. It will be given under the distinguished patronage of the premier of British Columbia and Mrs. McBride, and His Worship the Mayor and Mrs.
Morley. The people of this city, who their in prosperity or otherwise, have always willingly responded to the appeal on behalf of the orphans, and the committee confidently expect that a willing response will be forthcoming on this occasion. The candy table will be in charge of Mrs. Robin Dunsenmuir and a very choice musical programme has been provided for both evenings.
The programme for to-morrow evening will be as follows: Song, Mrs. Goward;
piano solo, Miss Alice Briggs; song,
Mrs. Dowler; piano solo, Miss Phyllis
Keene; song, R. A. C. Grant; song,
Miss Kitty Wallace; song, Mrs. J. D.
Helmcken; song, Mrs. Kent; violin solo, Miss R. Sylvester; song, Miss Scowcroft; song, Miss M. Hall.

The ladies' committee will dispense
the ever welcome cup of afternoon tea.
Donations of candy and cake will be most thankfully received.

TILLIE OLSON.

A Swedish Girl is Made the Hero
of the Play on Friday.

No dramatic writer ever hit upon the idea of making a young Swedish girl the heroine of a drama until "Tillie Olson" was thought out. There have been numerous Swedish-American dramas written for male stars, but this is the first one in which the fair sex are exploited. The only Swedish character in "Tilly Olson" is the girl Tilly. The rest of the characters are products of the great Northwest, the scene being laid first on a Minnesota farm and later in the city of Minneapolis. "Tilly" proves to be a very entertaining stage creation, for she is bright and witty and with a fund of good humor hid beneath the imperturbability for which her nation is noted.
The situations of the play are said to be extremely amusing and the comedy is cleverly cut and scintillating with things from beginning to end.
Some original specialties are introduced and a fine quartette is carried for the church scene. An adequate scenic equipment has been provided, every scene being from the studio of Messrs. Moses & Hamilton of the Broadway theatre, New York. An exceptionally clever company will aid in interpreting the comedy and the title role will be played by an especially clever comedienne, Miss Almee Common. The play will be at the Victoria theatre Friday evening.

SUNNY SIDE OF BROADWAY.

Murray and Mack Will Appear at Victoria Theatre To-morrow Evening.

That the musical comedy epidemic is a long way from abatement is fully evidenced by the determined efforts on the part of theatrical managers to put-point in general magnitude of past offerings in this direction. Among the best and by far the most successful ventures in the line of amusements, which are so deservedly popular, are Murray and Mack in their latest musical success, "The Sunny Side of Broadway," must take a notable precedence on account of the overwel-ming aim toward insuring a diversified entertainment such as cannot fail to appeal to the great masses of theatre-patrons who relish a blend of wholesome fun and captivating music, added to which pretty girls in gorgeous gowns are allowed important consideration.

Novelty and newness are abundantly promised in this play of music and music, and special stress is laid upon the fact that "The Sunny Side of Broadway" is the greatest starring vehicle ever used by Murray and Mack.

MANY ACRES LEFT.

As near as can be ascertained the unappropriated and unreserved public lands of the United States amount to 792,238,707
acres.

Houses in Berlin are numbered in luminous paint.

civilization supercede the light of Asia,
and become the light of Asia.

T. W. Andrews had never before heard this subject discussed from a woman's standpoint. He was a member of the Oriental Exclusion League in Victoria because he believed in the principles of the league. In the Garden of Eden, which was an ideal condition,
there was no upper class and no lower class. Adam had no servants. Man had established classes since that time. When the classes were established the question of immigration from an economic standpoint. He endorsed the stand of Dr. Fraser of Vancouver, that cheap labor was not needed in this country. Cheap labor had always been followed by bad conditions. Too many of the natural resources of the country in British Columbia were getting into the hands of the few. The experiment of cheap labor in the United States had cost the country an immense sum and left all kinds of troubles. He asked the ladies which choice they would make,
cheap labor with the knowledge that it would result in injury to the country, or putting up with the inconvenience that they now experienced, knowing that in the end it would result in benefit to the country? He knew the choice that would be made.

Several ladies expressed themselves on the subject very freely, one stating that little was to be hoped from the British Isles, as the servants of the old land were too well satisfied to ever want to come to Canada to enter service.

Mrs. Fitzgibbon, in closing the discussion, said that she agreed that a laborer should reap the product of his toil. This was just what she was contending for.
In her own work she would not be able to do her duty if she had to attend to the cooking, etc. She was viewing the question from a laborer's standpoint. She had seen the famine life and had seen men and women go down in the strenuousness of that life. She wanted to see the women of the house get the product of their labor. There would be fewer of the questions to come up at these meetings if women were relieved of the household and could give more attention to the home keeping. She would prefer to have two Canadians born in the country rather than half a dozen foreigners or even Britishers.
"The women were worked to death in the country owing to the abnormally high prices. She hated cheap labor. She wanted reasonable labor. As soon as the demand was made for reasonable labor she said she was met with the bogey of cheap labor. The question to be faced was what were the needs and how were they to be filled?

She favored the women petitioning
the parliaments, asking that the women
be taken into consideration in connection with this exclusion question.

She felt satisfied that there would be a large influx of the better classes in the land with growing families if they could be assured that labor would be available for the house and in the garden. It was important, therefore, to have reasonable labor. The competition for settlement would soon become more acute. She believed that in China itself the day would come when emigration would cease owing to the development of the country.

A vote of thanks was accorded to Mrs. Fitzgibbon on the conclusion of the meeting, and also to the other speakers.

CANNY SCOT MADE CHEAP TRIP WEST

A Study of the King's Regulations Afforded Him Chance to Get to Victoria

A good story is going the rounds in military circles at present. It appears that some time ago there landed in Quebec from Scotland a gentleman whom we may term "Mac," possessed of his full share of the poverty, thrift,
and canny long-headedness which usually characterizes the newly arrived "migrant from the Land of Rakes."

A few days in Quebec convinced him that here was not the land of golden opportunity. Much had he heard of the bright prospects in the Great West but as a stock-taking of his financial assets resulted in the net sum of $20
the problem to be solved was "How to get there?"

After much canny introspection Mac proceeded to the Citadel, a station of the Canadian regular militia and enrolled himself as a recruit anxious to proceed to the British Columbia station in Victoria where men were then needed. Having duly been passed by the doctor, our friend took the oath and formally enlisted for the usual term of three years. Mac, was in due course served out with his uniform,
and the usual complement of two suits of complete underwear, boots, etc. In two weeks' time a party was dispatched to make up the strength at the Victoria station and Mac was detached to form one of the party. As the detachment was only a small one,
it was not worth while putting on the regular soldiers' cooking car and providing the regulation diet so Mac fed right royally three times a day in the dining car. Two days after his arrival in Victoria "Mac" demanded to see the major, a right possessed by every soldier. When marched into the major's presence and directed to state his business our friend quietly deposited $15 on the table and asked for his discharge! He was hastily informed that he had enlisted for three years and that according to the regulations
if he wished to purchase his discharge
he would have to pay $2 for each unexpired month of his term or about $70. Whereupon the canny recruit drew attention to an obscure and hardly noticed section of the King's regulations which provided that if a recruit was dissatisfied with the service, he could obtain his discharge by paying the sum of $15 if paid within one month of the date of his enlistment.

The officer objected with warmth and eloquence and when he paused for breath it was only to hear the recruit expressing a polite hope that on his discharge (which he took as entirely settled) his discharge paper would certify, under the heading of "Character," that he had been "excellent,"
as he had faithfully discharged his duties during the whole term of his service.

In the upshot Mac was seen wending his way out of the barracks with $5 of the original $20 with which he landed in Quebec still in his pocket,
a good pair of government boots, and a complete set of underwear on his person and in his hand a regular discharge from His Majesty's Canadian militia with the endorsement required by the regulations that during the course of his military career his character had been "Very Good," and the opinion (unwritten) of his unquenchable superior officers that "he would be heard from again."

QUIET WEDDING.

T. D. Fawcett, Purser of the Princess Victoria, and Miss Skelton United in Matrimony.

The marriage of Mr. Thomas Douglas Fawcett and Miss Lillian May Skelton took place yesterday at the residence of Mr. Edgar Fawcett, "Dingley Dell," Victoria, B. C.

The bride is the youngest daughter of the late Samuel Skelton, of Portland, Maine. The groom is well-known in Victoria and in the other coast cities,
as the popular purser of the steamer Princess Victoria. He is the son of Edgar Fawcett, of H. M. customs service.

The marriage was private, only the immediate members of the family being present.

The happy couple left by the steamer Chippewa for the Sound. They will visit Portland and Spokane and on the way home spend a week at Vancouver.

TWO LOST IN SOUND DISASTER.

Two men met death in the waters of Puget Sound yesterday morning when the steamship Indianapolis, bound for Tacoma from Seattle, crashed into the shore launch of the survey ship Explorer during a dense fog. The negro steward of the launch, George A. Maylor, jumped from the tiny craft when the steel bows of the passenger steamship cut through the hull of the launch, and striking his head against the side of the steamship, sank. The engineer of the launch, Joseph Van Leeuwen, met a more horrible death, for the engine of the small boat exploded when the Indianapolis struck. Two other sailors on the launch sprang clear of the wreckage into the water, and were hauled aboard the passenger vessel with ropes. The fatality occurred but a few hundred feet from the Indianapolis' berth at Seattle. She left at 9 o'clock for Tacoma, and was coming on her course when the launch ran across her bows. Almost before the passengers could realize the danger of the small craft it had gone to the bottom and two lives had been lost.

STEAMER WRECKS LOCK.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—Confusion in engine room signals to-night resulted in the steamer Neepawa, an upper lake boat, ramming the upper gates of lock number one on the Lachine canal. The gates were carried away, and the rush of water in the basin above carried the steamer down in the harbor. She was not damaged, but the barge Regina, in the basin at the time, was carried out into the harbor and sunk with her cargo of 25,000 bushels of wheat. Two other barges sustained smaller damage. On the Regina at the time were the captain, his wife and five children. The Regina before sinking swung along side another barge, and they were able to make their escape. The total loss is placed at $50,000. Navigation will be interrupted, but the old lock is still available for vessels drawing under 14 feet of water.

BARQUE SERVIA LOST.

Three sailors were drowned when the American barque Servia was swept to destruction on the rocky coast of Kodiak Island in a terrible gale recently. News has reached Puget Sound ports of the Servia's loss and of the rescue of twenty-one members of the crew. The barque had a valuable cargo, including 40,000 cases of salmon. The exact date of the disaster has not been learned, but it is known that the Servia drove ashore during a great storm near Kodiak, a trading post on Kodiak Island. The canvas was stripped from the yards before she struck and the crew awaited death amid the whirling snow and howling wind. When the vessel went on the rocks, one man, overcome by the cold and driven mad by the anticipation of death, jumped overboard to a suicide's grave. Two others were drowned endeavoring to get ashore. The remainder of the crew managed to escape from the barque and, in the morning, obtained assistance for Karluk.

The men have been taken to Seward and will be brought to Seattle shortly. The Servia is well known on Puget Sound, having been engaged in lumber-carrying for a number of years. She was owned by the Pacific States Trading Company, of San Francisco. She was built in Bath, Me., in 1880. Length 284 feet, beam, 41 feet, depth, 18 feet, 1,736 net tons.

LUMBER RATES AND CHARTERS.

The charter report for the last week shows the activity more among the steamships than the sailing vessels and the cargoes going ashore rather than coastwise. There are four steamships among the recent fixtures to one sailing craft. This list is as follows:

Sea King, 514, 3d., Puget Sound to Valparaiso f. o. Pisagua Range; steamship Hatmet, Portland or Puget Sound to Sydney, private terms; steamship Admiral Cecil, 608, Everett Sound to a direct fort in South Africa; steamship Saint Egbert, 34, on dead weight, Japan to Guaymas (delivery Japan and redelivery Guaymas); steamship Cromwell, 44, on dead weight, Japan to Guaymas (delivery Japan and redelivery at Guaymas). ### FRENCH LINERS COMING.

Advices from Havre state that the Chargeurs Reunis steamship Europe, the latest addition to the French line, left that port on the 28th ultimo on what is known as the "round-the-world" route. The French steamship will come to Puget Sound and will be docked at Esquimalt, according to arrangements recently made.

Few steamship lines send their vessels right round the globe. But the Chargeurs Reunis Company has done it for two years past, and is now building five new twin-screw passenger and cargo steamers—three on the Tyne and two at St. Nazaire—to develop its unique service. The route from Antwerp and Dunkirk, via the Suez Canal, to Singapore, China and Japan. Then the boats turn across the Pacific to Honolulu, San Francisco and Puget Sound. Next they turn southward for Mexican, Central American and West Coast ports. Then they pass through the Straits of Magellan, the steamer round into the South Atlantic, and after a call at Monte Video, and possibly at Brazilian ports, head for the English Channel. The whole voyage takes some 220 days. That there are people who have the time for it is suggested by the fact that the new boats are 500 feet in length, and have plenty of single and double berth cabins.

SHIP'S TERRIBLE EXPERIENCES.

The four-masted ship Marjon Josiah, 2,394 tons, of Glasgow, bound from Tacoma with wheat, arrived at Queens-town recently, after a very rough passage. During a furious gale a huge sea was shipped and washed the chief officer along the main deck, killing him instantly. The water rushed onward and displaced the forecastle house, and partially wrecked the apprentices' house. Two seamen were carried from the wheel, one of them being washed overboard and drowned, while the other was badly injured. Binnacles, compass, ventilators, and railings were washed away, and the deck was strewn with wreckage. The ironwork of the top gallant foremast and the rail of the top gallant forecastle were much bent and twisted, and the rudder had to be lashed to steer the vessel.

FARRINGTON APPOINTED.

At a meeting held at San Francisco Monday the directors of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company elected W. C. Farrington to succeed W. E. Pearce as vice-president. President Ford was re-elected, and to his title of president was added that of general manager. Vice-President Farrington will make his headquarters in San Francisco. Mr. Farrington was manager of the Morgan line, a Harriman corporation, for a number of years, and prior to that operated a Hill line of steamers on the Great Lakes.

DOMINION SERVICE.

After completing a considerable amount of work on the west coast for the department of marine and fisheries, the D. G. S. Quadra, Capt. Hackett, is on her way back to port, and is expected to arrive to-night. The Maude is expected this afternoon from Comox, bringing the buoy and beacon which was damaged on the bar recently. The Joliffe is expected from the north daily.

CUT A WHALE IN TWO.

A dispatch from Philadelphia says that a whale was run down and cut in two off Cape Hatteras by the steamer Admiral Farragut, which has arrived here from Jamaica. Capt. Mader, of the Farragut, states that on Saturday afternoon, when off Cape Hatteras, a school of from fifteen to twenty whales was seen. He supposed that they would disappear by the time the vessel came near, but was mistaken. The sharp prow of the Farragut cut one about 60 feet long squarely in two, one half disappearing on the port side and the other on the starboard side.

TAMPOCO REACHES SEATTLE.

The tug Lorne with the damaged steamship Tampoco, of the Pacific Coast S. S. Co.'s fleet, in tow, reached Seattle yesterday afternoon, completing her long tow of nearly three hundred miles from Blinkinson Bay. The Tampoco was well down by the head during the whole of the trip, but the pumps kept the water from gaining, and the unwieldy, ore-laden tow was brought to the Sound port at a good pace by the smart local tug. The Tampoco will probably be repaired at Eagle harbor drydock.

TARTAR TO SAIL SOON.

The steamship Tartar, which was recently damaged in collision with the Charrner off Sandheads, and has been in the Esquimalt drydock for the last three weeks, will be floated at the end of the week, and will probably sail for the Orient to be handed over to her new owner shortly. The Victoria Machinery Depot has done a smart piece of work in repairing the bows of the Tartar, and it is expected that no time will be lost in sending her out to Japan.

KAZEMBE TO DOCK MONDAY.

The damaged Bucknall steamship Kazembe, which struck a boulder in English Bay while seeking for an anchorage on Saturday night, will be brought to the drydock at Esquimalt on Monday for repairs. Mr. Mitchell, Lloyd's surveyor, looked over the steamship while in Vancouver, and will make a survey when the Kazembe is docked. Tenders will probably at once be called for by the agents of the Bucknall line.

HEAVY TOLL OF WRECKES.

During the week ending a fortnight ago, no less than thirty-seven vessels have been referred to in the "Loss Book" at Lloyd's, of which eighteen were British owned. The largest was the British steamer Queen Christina, and so slight is the prospect of salvage that 90 guineas per cent. is the rate paid on her. From January to October the total number of maritime casualties was 1,028, compared with 1,097 last year.

DUNELM IN TROUBLE.

London, Nov. 12.—The steamship Dunelm, which left Middlesbrough on the 10th inst. for Montreal, has returned to Sunderland with her steering gear damaged. The Dunelm was making her initial trip, having been launched at Sunderland on September 25th.

ARCADIA IN PORT.

The United States revenue cutter Arcadia, from Port Townsend, came over this morning and tied up for a short time at the wharf of the Hudson's Bay Company.

NORDPOL'S CARGO AFIRE.

Pernambuco, Nov. 12.—The Norwegian steamship Nordpol, bound from Rio Janeiro for New York, has put into this port with her cargo on fire.

MARINE NOTES.

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Iyo Maru sailed yesterday afternoon for the Orient, taking 140 steerage passengers from this port. The majority of these were Chinese, who were returning to their homes to celebrate the Chinese New Year. The Iyo was well-laden

THE NATIONAL SPIRIT.

President Falconer's Address Before the Canadian Club, Toronto.

"The Necessity of Breadth in National Life" was the subject of a stirring patriotic address by President Falconer, of Toronto University, at the Canadian Club luncheon held a few days ago.

The great Dominion was physically broken up and divided. The maritime provinces were cut off from Ontario, the centre pin, by the great province of Quebec, while the great lakes separated us from the prairie provinces, which again were shut out by the Rockies from British Columbia. The national life, however, appeared to snap over by the great similarity of ideas that existed in all the provinces.

Across the border the racial difficulties were far more pronounced than here—conditions of life in Boston were of a different character than at St. Paul or Seattle. The elements in those different cities would not fuse. In Canada it was different. Even in Quebec the old racial barriers were being broken down.

"I believe," said Dr. Falconer, "that one of the most potent influences for good has been that of Ottawa. It has led to a better feeling between the United States and Canada. I look to a bigger influence emanating from there in the future, that will be felt in the remotest districts of the country. The people are getting broader views and the religious and educational institutions are welding the peoples together as no other influence can. They are affiliated with the great institutions of the Mother Land. At their annual meetings representatives from all parts meet and exchange ideas. In this way people get to know each other and become more tolerant. One result of this is seen in the great assimilation movement that is taking place in the eastern provinces.

STOLEN BY BRIGANDS.

Wealthy Parents' Romantic Recovery of Their Lost Child.

People passing a fashionable restaurant in Moscow were astonished at a little drama enacted under their very eyes. An officer and an elegantly dressed lady stepped out of their coats to enter the restaurant when a girl in rags came forward, begging. The lady turned pale, uttered a cry, and fondly pressed the child in her arms. The officer also seemed to be distraught with joy. A crowd rapidly assembled. The officer, while his wife wept over and kissed the child, stated that the beggar girl was their own daughter. They lost her during the war with Japan, in Manchuria. At the time of the battle of Liaoyang he lived with his wife and child in a Chinese hut. One day the child was stolen by Chinese brigands, and all search was vain. What actually took place was later discovered. A soldier named Grutsko found the girl, who was abandoned by the brigands. He took the child with him, and when afterwards, being wounded, he was taken to Moscow she accompanied him. There he fell on evil days, and she had to beg in the streets. The soldier died in hospital, and the child, left alone and helpless, was forced to beg for herself. She had been living in this way for some time when the strange meeting with her wealthy parents took place.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued).

The visitor was, at all events, not close behind the servant, and for some reason she was glad of the respite. "Where is he?" she questioned, a slight quiver in her voice.

"I showed Sir George into the boudoir, your ladyship, thinking you were engaged."

"Ah!" with a little relieved sigh. "That was right, William. I will see him there in a few minutes."

William vanished; the door closed; Lady Sophie remembered us. But there was a subtle change in her manner.

"It is settled, then?" she asked. Her tone was almost impatient, and, as soon as I had murmured "Yes," she hurried on.

"Good! Can you get away the day after to-morrow? Ah, I'm very pleased. I will—but no, on second thoughts, for several reasons, perhaps, I'd better not drive to Peckham for you. You shall come here, but don't bother about—or much packing. It will amuse you to choose a new outfit with me. I may depend on you? Then I won't keep you and Miss—er—Bryden longer now, as she is in haste; and I've an early dinner, for a theatre party, to dress for, too. Good-by, or, rather, au revoir!"

Before we knew what had happened we had been cordially shaken hands with, William had been rung for to show up out, and we were in the warm June sunlight of Parks Lane again, vanished from fairyland, humbly waiting for an omnibus.

"Why was she in such a hurry to get rid of us?" queried Anne. "And why was she so pleased because the footman had shown that man into another room?"

My ears tingled with the sting of my conviction.

"She was ashamed to have anyone to see us in our dowdy clothes. And that brute of a William was ashamed, too. That's why."

"Oh, do you think so? I don't. It goes deeper than that. Mark my words, Con, there's a mystery of some sort, and the man who called is mixed up in it. Don't go to sleep with that woman dear. It's all too fantastic. No good can come of it, but maybe dreadful harm to you."

No wonder that Anne's words struck coldly on my heart. It was odd that she, as well as I, should have suspected something hidden, for Lady Sophie de Gretteon's explanation, though eccentric, had sounded frank enough. I would not have given up my new prospects, chimerical as they still appeared, unless as it were according to an old proverb to exchange "a bird in the hand for two in the bush," but since the entrance of the footman to announce a visitor, my excitement had been dying down. Now I felt chilled and unhappy, yet obstinate.

"I can't help it," I said sulkily. "It's done now, for good or evil. I wish an omnibus would come."

But at an unseen distance something had happened, and there was a block in the stream of traffic. Not an omnibus was in sight, and none of the carriages packed into Hamilton Place were able to move out into Piccadilly.

Anne and I were obliged to stand close by the curbstone waiting, and though I was in too reckless a mood to care whether I were late in arriving at Hapholme Villa or not, I was also too impatient to tolerate waiting. I wanted to be going somewhere, anywhere.

Anne and I could only be together in an omnibus for a certain length of time; we must then separate, she proceeding in one direction, I in another.

Only a little while ago I had disliked the idea of parting with her; now I welcomed it, for I did not wish her to disengage her conscientious efforts at this juncture, allowing an omnibus finally to overtake us, and Anne suggested the plan, only to have it vetoed by me. If we walked she would have plenty of opportunity for further argument; in an omnibus, where all our neighbors might hang upon our words, private conversation would be impracticable.

So we stood still. I feverishly discussing the hats and frocks in the carriages packed along the waiting line, and nearly ten minutes must have passed before a movement ahead became perceptible. We were still close to Lady Sophie de Gretteon's when at last the omnibus we desired came in sight.

It was rattling along at great speed to make up for lost time, and, as the driver seemed disinclined to see our insignificance, I boldly dashed out to head it off before the more cautious Anne had left the pavement.

I had stretched out my hand to grasp the rail, when an impatient cab horse intercepted me, I sprang back startled, and felt my shoulders come in contact with something just behind.

A woman on top of the omnibus uttered a shrill squeal of alarm, and the sound of her voice, the expression of her eyes, which for a bewildered instant I saw were fixed on me, robbed me of my presence of mind.

I thought that I was going to be run over. In imagination I felt myself knocked down, wheels crunching over my spine. The whole world seemed made of horses—rearing horses, horses with tossing heads and trampling hoofs. The street was a sea of horses.

They were everywhere—in front, behind, coming from both sides; go where I would, I could not escape. I shut my eyes and threw up my hands, conscious in an odd, bewildered way, even at that instant, that I had dropped my umbrella, and should never be able to buy another, if I lived to want it.

People were shouting this and that at me; I only heard their voices, not their words, and they all sounded angry, unsympathetic, as if they were annoyed that I had got in their way, not that they cared what became of me.

It could not have lasted sixty seconds, though I had thought of so many things (even feeling a pang of regret that this had not happened after instead of before my glorious visit to Lady Sophie de Gretteon, now to be lost forever under the horses' hoofs), when I was caught up bodily and planted in safety on the pavement. It was a strong man that held me, and until a list cleared away from my eyes I thought my stammered thanks were due to a big policeman; but though the policeman was there, having arrived the fraction of a second too late, it was not to him that I owed my deliverance.

"Twas that gentleman there, not me," he explained, with a gruffness born of my reckless conduct, which deserved all the punishment it had received. My impression was that if anyone merited a scolding it was the omnibus driver for not looking, or the first cabman, who had come so near to us, and I racked my brain for some motive to account for the elder woman's interest in me, taking for granted that it actually existed. The daughter had certainly observed with some eagerness the young man who had been speaking with us; she had whispered to her mother, who had at once exhibited uncontrollable feeling.

Could it be, I wondered, that my knight was this pretty girl's husband? That she was jealous, and, suspecting an acquaintance between him and myself, had induced her mother (the typical, suspicious mother-in-law of the flirtatious, farce-comedy husband) to track me to my lair?

He had been as far as possible from resembling this farce-comedy, gay dog of a young man; on the contrary, he had been, as Anne said, solidly, brown, serious, with gray eyes that looked as if they might be very much in earnest. But I could think of no other solution to the puzzle, and in accepting it I lost the thrill of mystery in the chase. A chase, however, it undoubtedly was, I was not too far away, perched up in my high seat, to observe when I ventured to glance behind me, the expression on the faces of coachman and groom.

It was contemptuous resignation; every weary feature said that never before had they been expected to dance attendance on a vulgar omnibus. I thought they might even go so far as to give a month's notice when they reached home.

Suddenly something impish entered into my breast, and it occurred to me that it would be amusing to try an experiment. I ran down the winding staircase of the omnibus, and, undiscovered by my late mishap, jumped off before it stopped.

Another was coming, and was just in eyes, on the principle of 'It never rains but it pours.'

"She did look at me strangely—very strangely," I persisted.

"Well, you're not exactly plain." "There she is again!" I exclaimed eagerly. "I do believe she's following us."

"Nonsense!" retorted Anne. "There are dozens of victorias coming this way. Why not her's?"

There was common sense in Anne's words, but somehow I could not be convinced. The victoria was about abreast of our hansom; though its elder occupant wore a surface air of composure, she was alert, watchful, and her cold eyes lighted as they met mine.

I said no more to Anne, for I could not prove my assertion; and I knew that she fancied my experiences of the afternoon had sown the seeds of conceit in my heart.

She was inclined to talk of the man from whom we had just parted, and I encouraged the tendency, since it took her mind from my affairs. At the place where we should have changed into different omnibuses I insisted on getting out, as Anne each other good-by, and I hailed my omnibus. As I did so, I threw a furtive glance behind. The victoria was still in sight.

For a moment I hesitated, and then ascended to the top of the omnibus. From a vantage on the back seat I could from time to time observe the progress of events. If it were really by chance that the victoria with the two ladies was coming in this direction, it would soon overtake and leave the humble omnibus far behind. If not—and I was right indeed of Anne—I might prove my wild theory after all.

I racked my brain for some motive to account for the elder woman's interest in me, taking for granted that it actually existed. The daughter had certainly observed with some eagerness the young man who had been speaking with us; she had whispered to her mother, who had at once exhibited uncontrollable feeling.

Could it be, I wondered, that my knight was this pretty girl's husband? That she was jealous, and, suspecting an acquaintance between him and myself, had induced her mother (the typical, suspicious mother-in-law of the flirtatious, farce-comedy husband) to track me to my lair?

the act of turning a corner which would take it in quite a different direction. I was in time to board it. I wondered if "they" had observed the manoeuvre, and whether they would presently be seen pursuing. Yes, there was the victoria! The girl and her mother were talking together with animation, in strong contrast to the languor of their men when first we had met, before they had been waked to this odd interest, which I was not yet sure that I understood.

I had not lingered to ask the destination of this second conveyance, but, when the conductor appeared to demand my fare, I discovered that it was taking me away from, rather than toward, Peckham. I should be late, and Mrs. East would be angry. Nevertheless, I would play the game out now.

My money was running low, and I had only a few pence left, at the end of the route, I might have been tempted further to prolong the hunt. As it was, there remained nothing to do but to repair to Peckham, after stepping into a shop, and remaining inside as long as I could, to account for my visit to this part of the town. Somehow, I was unwilling for the pursuers to know that I had been deliberately misleading them; though why it mattered I could scarcely have explained to myself.

At the corner of Chesley street, where I lived, I beheld the inevitable victoria driving slowly past. I walked through the gate, up the steps to the door, but, changing my mind, ran down again, and gazed toward the end of the street. There the carriage had stopped before a bakery and post office. At the moment of my appearance the groom was coming out of the latter with a telegraph form in his hand. His mistress took it, and seemed to write.

I would have lingered at the open gate to see what might be next in the programme, but at this instant I was hailed by a familiar voice. It was that of Jimmy East, my one friend at Hapholme Villa.

"Oh, I say, ain't you goin' to catch it?" he ejaculated, appearing at the front door. "Ma's just savage because you're late. What are you doing out there, anyhow—afraid to come in?"

"No," I replied sulkily, ascending the steps with such dignity as I could command.

But my heart was beating somewhat faster than its wont. It was all well enough to tell myself, at a safe distance from Mrs. East, that I could now, for the first time, afford to brave her displeasure. But the habit of years had gripped me again, with my return to the old environment. I would not for a great deal that Jimmy should guess it, but in truth my soul melted within me as I crossed the threshold. I had a curious feeling that I had come back from another world; or perhaps I experienced the sensations of an opium eater, awakening to dull, head-achy realities after a dazzling panorama of dreamland. The smell of the stuffy little passage depressed me more than ever before—that indescribable reminiscence of dinners past, present, and to come. How narrow it was; how hideous the paper on the wall, representing marble; how grim the linoleum on the floor, which masqueraded unsuccessfully as mosaic!

"She's upstairs in our room, putting baby to bed," volunteered Jimmy, in an awestruck tone. No need for more particular classification. There was only one omnipresent, reigning She at Hapholme! "She said you were to go right up to her the instant minute you came in, Connie. I was put to wait at the drawin'-room window to watch for you."

"Very well, I'm going," I responded, and set my foot upon the stairs. There was a bad half hour in store for me, I was aware, and I could have found it in my heart to wish that Mr. East were at home.

Mr. East was only my cousin Sarah's husband, in Peckham; but in wider spheres he was a commercial traveller. When he abode at Hapholme I desired his absence, for his carpet slippers and his dressing gown got upon my nerves. Besides, he had a disagreeable habit of patting me on the shoulder and remarking on the color of my hair or my eyes when his wife was not in the room.

But at least he did his cowardly best to stand between me and Cousin Sarah's wrath; and things undoubtedly went more smoothly during his visits than when he was away inducing provincial firms to order a certain brand of soap.

If he were here to-night—but he wasn't, and so there was no use in wishing.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH- WEST MINING REGULATIONS.

(1) All mining rights may be leased for a period of twenty-one years at an annual rate of $1 per acre. Not more than 250 acres shall be leased to one individual or company. A royalty of 10 per cent. of the net proceeds shall be collected on the sale of minerals. QUARTZ—A person eighteen years of age or over, having discovered a claim in place, may locate a claim 150 x 150 feet.

The fee for recording a claim is $1. At least $100 must be expended on the claim, or paid to the mining recorder in lieu thereof. When $50 has been expended or paid, the locator may, upon having a survey made, and upon complying with other requirements, purchase the land at $1 per acre.

The patent provided for the payment of a royalty of 25 per cent. on the sales. Placer mining claims generally are 300 feet square; entry fee, $10, renewable yearly.

An applicant may obtain two leases to dredge for gold of five miles each for a term of twenty years, renewable at the discretion of the Minister of the Interior. The lessee shall have a dredge in operation within one season from the date of the lease for each five miles. Rental $10 per annum for each mile of river dredged. Royalty at the rate of 25 per cent. collected on the output after it exceeds $10,000.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

THE FOLLY OF IT

The folly of not advertising because you did not succeed the first time you tried is equal to that of the man who said "it was no use" because he did not sharpen his axe with a single turn of the grindstone. Advertising is an undertaking that requires persistent effort if paying results are expected and the goal of success is not for the indifferent merchant.

The big fellows to-day are not the indifferent brand, look back at the history of the majority here and elsewhere.

AMERICA THROUGH CANADIAN EYES

Striking Address Delivered at Buffalo Equality Club by Hon.
Geo. W. Ross.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 12.—"Ourselves through Canadian eyes." This is what the people who were at the dinner of the Equality Club last night saw while Hon. George W. Ross, former premier of Ontario, and a member of the Dominion senate, was speaking. His subject was "American Statesmanship in National Building, as Seen by a Canadian."

Hugh Kennedy was toastmaster.
With an imagination covering in its broad sweep, the history of America, England, France, Russia, Japan, Mr.
Ross drew a picture of the American republic, its history, progress and ideals, a picture so graphic and drawn with such fidelity to the spirit, and even the letter of American institutions, that his hearers could scarcely believe that he was not an American when he finished.
The applause was tremendous.

And yet he did not flatter, he even adversely criticized us a bit. He thought the American constitution should never have permitted slavery;
said that the war of 1812 was a mistake;
that the repeal of the reciprocity treaty in 1866 was one too. But he did all in a courteous way, as when he was referring to the victories of diplomacy.

"Your diplomats have always," he said, "looked well to the interests of the United States; in fact, we Canadians think that once or twice they won things for you far too favorable for our interests. We think you got more than you should have had of what is now Maine. Franklin got you two harbors on the North Atlantic coast, while we,
if we want to go from Montreal to Halifax by a direct route must go outside of our country. The part we go through ought to be annexed to Canada."

(Laughter.)

Referring to the question of the trade relations between the United States and Canada, Senator Ross declared that he thought the repeal of the reciprocity treaty had put a damper on the friendly relations which might have existed to the mutual advantage of both countries.

He thought the tariff wall had been a detriment to both countries, set com-mercially, as they were one against the other. Briefly he described how Canada had sought to renew the reciprocity trade relations in 1874, 1878, and finally by the joint commission which met in Washington several years ago. The negotiations had been all to no purpose.
Touching on modern tendencies, Mr.
Ross said there was a tendency towards centralization. This was shown by the interstate commerce law, the pure food law, etc., by which the federal government assumed control of affairs formerly managed by the individual states.

"You have grown and prospered," Mr. Ross declared, "you have won the respect of the whole civilized world with a constitution which guarantees
the widest possible toleration of race and creed. You will go forward, trusting in the Providence which shapes the end of every nation."

The rattles of the rattlesnake lie edge-wise. It is evident that they must do as much as they are but continuations of the backbone. The snake carries the rattles on the back except when he raises them to sound his warning. This will be evidenced by the fact that in every snake of any size that is killed the rattles are worn through on the under side.

Anxious to ascertain the exact truth
of this statement, which was generally published, I journeyed, says a press correspondent, to West Orange and found the great inventor in his shirt sleeves, busily engaged, as usual, in the world-famous laboratory.

"Yes," he said, "the horse is doomed.
He will begin to pass from the cities in December, when the manufacture of my improved battery will be started."
"So that in the near future," I observed, "every man of moderate means will be able to dispense with, tramway cars and ride his own storage battery 'run-about.'"

"Well," replied Mr. Edison, who is in the brightest spirits and the pink of health, "that is not the main object of my invention. My primary aim has been to find a means of relieving the intolerable congestion of traffic in overpopulated cities. To do that it was necessary to furnish a battery so durable that its high cost would be of no account. It was not my wish to put on the market unexpected storage batteries. The demand, however, has been so persistent that I have been obliged to turn out some 300 of them in the year."

"But two months hence the perfected battery will be an accomplished fact,
and butchers and small tradesmen will be able to acquire a wagon that will run more miles during its lifetime than any horse. Now I have in this building a battery that will last for 50,000 miles.
A truck armed with it as motive power could carry twice as much, travel twice as fast, and occupy half the space of a horse and wagon."

LABOR TO FIGHT MANUFACTURERS

American Federation Reports That Contest Was Brought on by Association.

Norfolk, Nov. 12.—That there will be war to the knife between the American Federation of Labor and the National Association of Manufacturers
was evidenced to-day at the session of the Federation of Labor here. The Federation has already taken the aggressive by looking to the establishment of a fund to fight the Manufacturers' Association through its executive council.

The cry is that undue pressure is being brought to bear by the manufacturers of the country against organized labor, to the detriment of the latter. It is claimed, "The manufacturers combat this in a statement issued to-day by James Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers,
in which he holds that the object of his whereby they may be held responsible for their contracts. As an instance he calls attention to the pending suit in New York of the Typothetae against the pressmen, alleging the breaking of contracts by the pressmen.

The executive committee of the Federation reported that the contest has been brought about through the Manufacturers' Association with an available fund of $1,500,000. The executive committee reported discussed many features of the year's activity.

Toronto is seeking next year's convention.

COINER'S DEN.

In the Mountains of Rockland County Counterfeit Half Dollars Were Produced.

New York, Nov. 12.—The arraigment of Henry H. Hens before United States Commissioner Shields to-day by U. S. secret service officers, on the charge of counterfeiting, brought to light what they regard as a most important find. Hens was held for the federal jury.

According to statements made to the commissioner Hens has been producing a half dollar of partly pure silver
so skillfully made that only experts could determine them. The plant where the coins were produced was said to be in a secluded spot in the Ramapo mountains, in Rockland county.

The present price of silver, it was said, enabled him to purchase silver bullion or old silver for melting and turn out coins of standard weight and finish at a profit of about 50 per cent.
About 200 of the coins had been circulated in New York before the officers secured the clue which led to Hens's arrest.

GERMANY AND FRANCE.

Paris, Nov. 12.—The German embassy has issued a statement confirming the report of the recall of Rear Admiral Siegro, but saying it was solely due to his appointment to a new post in Germany.

MONARCHS TALK OF FRIENDSHIP

KAISER ENTERTAINED
AT WINDSOR CASTLE

German Foreign Secretary Says
Father and England Have no Outstanding Differences.

Windsor, England, Nov. 12.—The speeches made by King Edward and Emperor William at the state dinner here were formal in tone. They consisted of a reciprocal expression of the pleasure the visit afforded, and of a mutual desire for the maintenance of friendship and peace between the two nations.

Emperor William alluded graciously to his happy childhood under the walls of the grand old Windsor castle, and he expressed the earnest wish that the close relationship existing between the two royal families should be reflected in the relations of the two countries, and thus confirm the peace of the world, which he said was the constant endeavor of King Edward and himself.

At the conclusion of the state visit at Windsor castle, November 18th, Emperor William will spend a fortnight at Highcliffe castle, at Christ church, near Bournemouth, a beautiful sequestered spot of historic association.
King Edward, the King of Spain and other royal personages have often stayed at Highcliffe castle.

"There is no intention of discussing at Windsor any concrete political question," said Herr Von Schoen, secretary of the German foreign office, who is accompanying Emperor William on his Majesty's visit to England.

"Germany and England are in the happy position of having no actual political questions outstanding, but we hope and believe that the Emperor's visit will bring about a renewal of the close affectionate relations between the two countries. Their relations have always been correct, but this is not enough. There is an increasing desire that they become something more. Germany does not look for any specially defined political agreement or understanding, that might give rise to apprehension in the case of any other power. Our hope simply is that the relations between the governments may be closely assimilated to the not only cordial but affectionate relations existing between the reigning houses."

Polished Crystal

THE FLASH OF POLISHED CRYSTAL in the Cut Glass room has delighted many a visitor since the introduction of this room (the finest of its kind in Canada). During the past few days, however, we have been adding to this showing some of the handiwork of Libbey's master workmen, and the display now far surpasses any of our previous offerings in Cut Glass. Imagine the flash of polished crystal, the brilliancy of scintillating facets, the flame of lighted diamonds—the offerings of the Cut Glass Showroom.

Quite aside from the question of its superior loveliness, the intrinsic value of "Libbey" Cut Glass is infinitely greater than that of any other cut glass made. The finest workmanship and finest workshops in the world, the highest possible degree of care and skill and artistry—all these elements give it a "worth" and "value" that is absolutely unique.

Now is an excellent time to purchase Christmas Gifts. You'll never see a nicer or better collection. We shall be pleased to show you these excellent offerings. Come in and see the show anyway.
